GALLIPOLI GENERALS LAUDED BY ASQUITH

Evacuation Unparalleled in History, Says Premier, in That Not a Single Life was Lost

King Advised to Give Special Recognition to Leaders; Turks Claim a Complete Victory

By PERCY THOMAS.
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

London, Jan. 10.—The evacuation of the Gallipoli peninsula has no parellel in military or naval history," declared Premier Asquith in the House of Commons today. The retirement was effected without the loss of a single life.

"King George has been advised to give especial recognition to the generals, admirals and other officers concerned in the successful movement of troops from the Dardanelles."

The Premier said it was undesirable to discuss the report of General Sir Ian Hamilton, former commander at the Dardanelles, at present.

The official statement declares the evacuation was accomplished with but one British soldier wounded, no casualties to the French and with the

WEAPONS FROM U. S. PROLONG WAR, SAYS THE CROWN PRINCE

Regrets Aid Given Germany's Enemies

It is a great pity that your country is sending weapons and ammunition to the enemy armies. This is the factor that prolongs the war.—Statement by the German Crown Prince in unique interview with Augustus F. Beach, International News Service correspondent.

By AUGUSTUS F. BEACH.
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

Berlin (via Sayville), Jan. 10.—I have today had an unique interview with the German Crown Prince, who is leading his army in France.

I had telegraphed the Crown Prince from Berlin, sending him New Year's greetings and inquiring whether, in his opinion, the great war would be brought to a close in 1916. Answering my telephone in my room in the Adlon Hotel, I was informed that his royal highness, the Crown Prince, was calling from German headquarters in France.

"ROYAL DEMOCRAT."

I had often heard the Crown Prince described as a "royal democrat." Here was ample proof of the fitness of the title.

An aide first asked me if I preferred to speak English. Answering in the affirmative, I was at once connected with the Crown Prince.

After exchanging greetings, the Crown Prince said, speaking perfect English very distinctly:

"I wish to answer your question, Mr. Beach, about the prospects of the war ending during the present year. I can say that I am convinced that we shall win in the end, just as I was convinced a year ago that we would win.

"It is difficult to say whether our victory will be proclaimed in the year 1916, but of the ultimate outcome I have no doubt."

I then inquired as to the morale of the German troops—whether they shared this confidence. The Crown Prince replied:

"They are more convinced than ever that they are fighting to victory."

GERMANS HOLD FIRM.

Having in mind the continuing decisive German successes, I asked the Crown Prince what, in his opinion, would be the chief factor in prolonging war. He answered directly and pleasantly, without trace of rancor:

"It is a great pity that your country is sending weapons and ammunition to the enemy armies. This is the factor that prolongs the war."

I asked the Crown Prince if American ammunition was being used generally along the front.

"Yes," he replied, "a very great deal of it is now being fired along the entire front."

In spite of this assistance, the Crown Prince said, his lines are invulnerable. "The allies are making no progress whatever on any part of our front," he said.

I quite casually asked his imperial highness if there was any fighting of importance in progress as we talked.

"No," he replied, "there is no concerted action in progress, but there is spasmodic fighting at different points along the line."

RED SOX RELEASE "HEINIE" WAGNER

Heinie Wagner, for many years the crack shortstop of the Red Sox, was today given his unconditional release by President J. J. Lannin. The owner of the World's Champions felt that, being a free agent, Wagner could best deal with clubs looking for a manager.

Wagner came to the Red Sox in 1906 from the Newark club. He was with the Giants in 1902, finishing the season with Columbus, O., where he remained in 1903, returning to the Giants, who again sent him to Newark. Wagner played there until secured by Boston.

SEEK CLEW TO DEAD YOUTH

Fail to Identify Boy Who Was Stricken in Theatre, Dying at Hospital; May Be a Student

WHO IS THIS BOY?

He entered a Scollay square "movie" theatre Saturday, and was found unconscious in his seat. He died later, and the police said his skull had probably been fractured. This is the police description of him:

AGE—17 to 20 years.
WEIGHT—130 pounds.
HEIGHT—5 feet 9 inches.
EYES—Blue.
HAIR—Brown.
SHIRT—White, with black stripe.
SWEATER—Garnet.
GLOVES—Brown woolen.
COAT—Brown checked mackinaw, with label bearing name, "Sanderson & Thompson, Amherst, Mass."
TROUSERS—Dark.
CAP—Light.
BELT—Black leather, with initial "S" on buckle.
SHOES—Black.
STOCKINGS—Black.

The Boston police bent every effort today to solve the mystery of the identity and death of the boy, supposed to be a college student, who collapsed in a Scollay square moving picture theatre Saturday afternoon and died later at the Relief Hospital without regaining consciousness.

While Medical Examiner Magrath was performing an autopsy on the body, police inspectors followed up the few clews in the case. One of their theories was that the youth might have been attacked and been struck over the head before he entered the theatre.

The autopsy today revealed that the boy had died of natural causes from a hemorrhage of the lungs. There were no marks of violence on the body.

ANNOY ER GIVEN TWO MONTHS

Women Accused on Way to Sveth End Church; Judge Declares "Masher Gang" Must Go

Alexander S. Spanopoulous, of No. 19 St. Germain street, was sentenced to two months in jail by Judge Murray in the City Court today, under the "Masher law."

He was found guilty, according to the technical wording of the law, "of accosting a female with improper language."

The victim of his attentions were Mrs. Lillian B. Bell, a bride, of No. 216 Dudley street, and Miss Alice Danton. It was Mrs. Bell's brother, William F. Sargent of Roxbury, who had grabbed Spanopoulous and dragged him to Lagrange Street Station, where he was locked up.

PASTOR DRAKE A WITNESS.

Spanopoulous fought the case hard. He had a lawyer. He pleaded not guilty. He claimed not only that he had met one of the young women before, but also that they had spoken to him first and had smiled at him. Judge Murray said flatly that he believed the young woman who denied all Spanopoulous said.

An interested participant in the court hearing was the Reverend Dan Harris Drake, pastor of Barnard Memorial Church. Mrs. Bell and Miss Danton are his parishioners. They were on their way to his church when accosted. Pastor Drake has been waiting to prosecute "masher" who have been annoying young women and girls of his flock. He told Judge Murray that it was high time this was stopped, and the Judge heartily agreed with him.

Spanopoulous appealed, and was held in $300. In default of bail he was locked up in Charles street jail to await trial.

Miss Danton said in part: "I was on my way to church. This man followed me almost to the very door. He kept getting in front of me and asking me to go to a show. I said: 'You mind your own business.' When Mr. Sargent appeared he went away."

SCORED BY JUDGE.

Mrs. Bell said: "I was going to church. This man accosted me, saying: 'Hello, won't you come with me?' I glared at him and said: 'You let me alone or I'll call a policeman.' My brother came along and took him to the station house."

After Spanopoulous tried to blame the young women, Judge Murray said: "I believe the story of these two young women. I think this man could duplicate others if he would. I think he is one of a gang engaged in this sort of a thing. It should be stopped. It is altogether too prevalent. Since this man has no court record I should judge two months in jail sufficient this time."

DRASTIC SMALL LOANS BILLS OFFERED

The legislative attack against the alleged abuses of the small loans system was started today when Representative Charles F. Rowley of Brookline filed two bills intended to impose drastic regulations upon the loan agencies. His bills provide:

Abolition of "paper charges."

Interest charged on loans shall not exceed 3 per cent. a month.

No assignment of wage less than $200 shall be valid unless accepted in writing by the employer and the acceptance recorded with the clerk of the city or town in which the borrower lives.

Written consent of the wife must be secured to validate a loan to a married man.

The sum of $10 a week shall be exempt from attachment.

All interest charges shall be fixed by the Supervisor of Small Loans.

The bills also provide that in cases where a borrower has been charged more than the legal rate of interest, the Superior Court shall declare the loan void and the borrower may recover the excess interest with twice the legal costs.

The proposed legislation results from the expose of methods practised by loan agencies in their dealings with city employes at Boston City Hall.

The Turkish advance guards are already in contact with the main defences of the Turks," the dispatches say.

Official announcement is made that General Nixon has been compelled by ill health to relinquish command of the British troops in Mesopotamia, and has been succeeded by Lieutenant-General Hailer.

Providence, Jan. 10.—The first sensation of the Mohr murder trial, which started today, came just before recess, when it was learned that detectives in the employ of the prosecution had talked with veniremen and ascertained their attitude on the case.

The surprise was sprung after a tentative jury had been selected, when Attorney-General Herbert A. Rice requested that Hugh Carney, Juror No. 1, take the stand.

Testimony was brought out to the effect that Carney had expressed an opinion in favor of Mrs. Elizabeth Frances Mohr, charged with being an accessory to the murder of her husband, and he was excused.

AFFIDAVITS SENT

Washington, Jan. 10.—Consul Kehlinger, at Malta, cabled the State Department today that he had obtained affidavits from several survivors of the Persia, including one from Lady Montagu. He stated that he was forwarding them by mail.

All agreed, he said, that the Persia was sunk without warning and that the officers kept a lookout for submarines all the way through the Mediterranean. None of the affidavits makes any mention of a submarine having been seen.

Secretary Lansing later announced that Consul Kehlinger also stated that the affidavits said that the 4.7-inch gun carried aboard the Persia was mounted aft. The secretary also said that the persons making the affidavits stated that "they believed the ship was torpedoed, though they did not see a submarine."

President Wilson now before him the German government's suggestion of settlement of the Lusitania case with prospects of an early and, officials believe, a favorable response.

The State Department is giving consideration to a means of closing up the Ancona case, which it is confidently expected, will accept Austria's overtures for settlement.

The Persia case, it is believed, will die a natural death, as did the Hesperian case, owing to the failure of the United States to establish proof of submarine attack.

RUSSIANS ADVANCE 30 MILES

By International News Service.

Petrograd, Jan. 10.—In the two weeks' battle that culminated in the capture of Chartorysk and the driving of all Austro-Germanian forces from the east bank of the Strypa River, the Teuton losses totaled at least 60,000 men, according to estimates made here today.

Official reports to the War Office state that the Russians have taken more than 20,000 prisoners and that twice that number of Austro-German soldiers have been killed or wounded.

During their successful operations between the Serth and Strypa rivers, the Russians have advanced thirty miles along a front of sixty miles. This was accomplished under severe weather conditions, but they are now improving and it is expected that the drive westward will gain momentum.

The Teuton positions on the west bank of the Strypa River are strongly fortified, but from the east bank the Russians, with their new plentiful supplies of ammunition, will be able to direct a devastating fire upon the enemy's trenches.

The railway town of Buszacz, on the Strypa, is already being shelled by the Russian gunners and has been set on fire in several places. The capture of this town will give the Czar's troops complete control of a railway line leading to the Dniester River and put in a dangerous position the Austro-German troops opposing the Russian advance northeast of Czernowitz.

"'The Pope asked me to say that he believes Belgium has a right to complete reparation from Germany.

"'He will never consent to intervene for peace unless Belgium at least is reconstituted in the plenitude of her former rights. There must include every title of her European and African territories restored, and indemnity given for the complete reconstruction of her ruined lands, monuments, arts and industries.'"

GERMAN DRIVE IN WEST

By CHARLES F. BERTELLI.

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Paris, Jan. 10.—German troops have launched a new and powerful offensive movement in the Champagne region, the French War Office announced today.

On Sunday Teutonic forces made four fierce attacks upon the French positions, the fighting lasting until night.

In the bombardment with which the Germans prepared for their assaults they again used shells containing asphyxiating gas.

The following communication was issued at the war office this afternoon:

"In Champagne the enemy has developed the attack made by him yesterday with the help of a violent bombardment in which he used principally shells containing asphyxiating gas.

"During the entire course of the day up to nightfall, he attempted no less than four assaults concentrated on a front of eight kilometers (five miles), running from LaCourtine to Mont Tetu, west and east of the butte of Mesnil.

"At every point our fire decimated the enemy's ranks and sharply arrested his attacks. He succeeded in gaining a foothold only temporarily at two points on our first line, namely, to the northeast of the butte of Mesnil and to the west of Mont Tetu.

"A vigorous counter-attack immediately drove the enemy out. He did not occupy the two elements of advanced trenches more than an hour in actual time."

Germans Capture French Trenches

By International News Service.

Berlin, Jan. 10.—Violent fighting has again developed in the Champagne region. Northeast of Massiges and near the farm of Maison de Champagne, several hundred yards of French trenches have been captured by the Germans, it was officially announced by the war office today.

The Germans captured 123 prisoners, seven of them officers, five machine guns, one large and seven small mine throwers.

Rear guard depots of the allies at Furnes, Belgium, have been attacked by a German air fleet.

The following is the text of the official report:

"West front—The Germans northwest of Massiges conquered several hundred yards of French trenches near the farm of Maison de Champagne and enemy positions were also taken.

We took 423 prisoners, including seven officers and captured five machine guns, one large and seven small mine throwers.

"A French counter attack eastward of the farm was repulsed.

"A German air division attacked the enemy rearguard depots at Furnes.

"East Front—The general situation is unchanged. An advance by Russian detachments near Belestiany was repulsed.

NINTH BRITISH BATTLESHIP BLOWN UP

By PERCY THOMAS,

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

London, Jan. 10.—Mine sweeping operations on a vast scale have been inaugurated since the destruction of the British battleship King Edward VII., of 16,350 tons, presumably by a mine planted by a German submarine.

Although the members of the ship's crew were saved, the loss of the King Edward VII. is a serious blow to the British fleet, for it was one of the finest of the last class of pre-dreadnoughts.

Since the German U-boats gave up their campaign of destruction against mercantile shipping evidence has developed that many of these underwater craft have been equipped for mine laying purposes and are carrying on this work in the most unexpected places around the British Isles.

The King Edward VII. was the ninth battleship and the twenty-second important warship lost by England since the war began.

The King Edward VII. was of a class of eight ships laid down in 1902-4 and completed in 1905-6. She carried a complement of 777 men, officers included, in peace. Her guns were: 12-inch, 9-inch, 6-inch, 12-pounders, 3-pounders and two maxims, besides five torpedo tubes submerged.

The King Edward VII. represented an investment of nearly £1,600,000 and was one of the finest of the last class of pre-dreadnoughts, corresponding in general to the American ships of the New Jersey and Nebraska type, and was only slightly older than the Natal, which was sunk by an internal explosion about a week ago.

Her length on the water line was 429 feet, her beam 78 feet and her draught 27. Her best recent speed was 19 1-10 knots.

loss of but seventeen "worn out" guns.

REPORT BIG BATTLE.

On the other hand, semi-official reports from Constantinople by way of Amsterdam tell of "great losses" to the British after a dreadful battle, the capture of a great British camp and the sinking of an allied transport laden with troops.

The official press bureau gives out the following:

"General Sir Charles Monro reports the complete evacuation of the Gallipoli peninsula has been successfully carried out. All the guns and howitzers were got away with the exception of seventeen worn out guns, which were blown up before leaving.

"The English casualties were one wounded. The French suffered no casualties."

GIVE UP SEDDUL BAHR.

General Monro states that the successful accomplishment of this difficult task was due principally to Generals Birdwood and Davies. Invaluable assistance was rendered in the operation under the greatest difficulties by Admiral De Roebeck.

One Amsterdam dispatch reads: "The British, as a result of a violent battle, have completely evacuated Seddul Bahr, with great losses, says a dispatch from Constantinople. Not a single man remained behind. The dispatch adds that newspaper reports from the Dardanelles say the Turkish troops have completely driven the French and British from Seddul Bahr, and that Gallipoli peninsula is now clear of the enemy."

A second Amsterdam dispatch is as follows:

"A semi-official report from Constantinople claims the capture by the Turks of a great allied camp and nineteen guns and the sinking by the Turks of an allied vessel with troops near Seddul Bahr."

That the evacuation followed a series of violent actions along the Dardanelles is claimed by the latest Turkish official statement.

LOSSES ARE SEVERE.

The British campaign in the Dardanelles is known to have cost the government 114,355 officers and men, killed and wounded. This does not include 96,682 who were invalided on account of sickness. Nor do the figures include the number of killed and wounded in the withdrawal from Suvla bay. They were issued on December 24 last and were to December 9, inclusive.

Contradictory reports were current regarding the losses during the withdrawal. Premier Asquith officially announced that the withdrawal had been accomplished with "two military and two naval men wounded." The official statement from Constantinople, however, declared that heavy losses had been inflicted upon the British."

Contradictory also are the official figures given out by the British. Under-Secretary Tennan of the War Office, on December 23, placed the figures at 112,521. On the following day Premier Asquith announced that they amounted to 114,555.

CONCEALMENT ROUSED PUBLIC.

It has been these contradictory reports and the apparent attempts to conceal the real condition of affairs in the Dardanelles campaign that has aroused the British public.

The start of the campaign gave birth to great expectations. The British were led to believe that the Turkish forts would immediately crumble under the rain of the British guns, and that forcing an entrance to Constantinople would be a simple matter.

They were assured that with the fall of Constantinople the Turkish Empire would be shaken to its foundation, and the colonies of India and Egypt would tremble at the thought of British power.

Great Celebration in Constantinople

Constantinople, Jan. 10.—Such demonstrations of rejoicing as this city has not known in many years have been taking place during the past twenty-four hours over the withdrawal of the balance of the Anglo-French troops from the Gallipoli peninsula.

The evacuation of the peninsula frees a Turkish quarter of million men for operations elsewhere. Constantinople was illuminated all night and the streets were crowded. The government buildings and many residences are decorated with flags. Special services are being held in the mosques.

Heavy losses are inflicted upon the allies in the last stages of the Dardanelles fighting, and the War Office reports that an allied transport was sunk by Turkish artillery.

The belief prevails here that the troops withdrawn from the Sedd El Bahr zone are being sent to Salonica.

A great amount of booty was captured by the Turks at Sedd El Bahr, when the allies retired. The work of sorting and enumerating it is now going on. Heavy howitzers from Germany and Austria, which have been arriving here since through traffic on the Orient railway was resumed, are being mounted on the Gallipoli heights. The Turks and German officers are confident that the allied warships which have been lying off the entrance to the Dardanelles will now have to retire.

BRITISH SHOT BY SHIP FLIES MAN IN U. S. FLAG DREAM

Three shots were fired at the British steamer City of Lincoln when off the coast of Siberia, according to officers of the ship, which reached Boston today with the richest cargo ever landed at this port. The shots were fired by a Russian warship, the third shot passing through one of the liner's masts. After inspecting the craft the Russians permitted the ship to proceed.

Soon after the vessel docked in Boston, a member of the crew declared that while passing through the Mediterranean the Lincoln had hoisted the American flag and that part of the ship's name had been painted out, leaving the one word, "Lincoln."

Officers of the liner refused to verify this statement.

The Lincoln's cargo is said to be worth $5,000,000. Part of it consists of 4,000 tons of rubber, worth $1,200,000. The ship also carried 2,000 tin ingots 46,000 gallons of bean oil and quantities of copper, tapioca, sago, rattan and other goods.

Most of the cargo was taken on in Singapore, at Singapore, Penang and Dalny. The ship was stopped by the Russians when in the Pacific off Vladivostock.

YES—IT IS POSSIBLE TO STOP RHEUMATISM

Rheumatism is a tormenting and stubborn malady. In some cases it yields to treatment which is without avail in other cases.

The sharp pains, lame muscles or stiffened joints disappear by expelling the uric acid, and so many thousands have been helped by the blood-enriching oil-food in Scott's Emulsion that you should give it a faithful trial. Scott's Emulsion is a powerful blood-purifier to increase the red corpuscles and it strengthens the organs to carry off the acids which cause the trouble.

Scott's Emulsion cannot harm, it has helped thousands and may be exactly what you need. Free from alcohol.

Francis J. Donahue of Irving street, Malden, who houses his automobiles in Malden Centre Garage on Malden square, was shot twice in the right leg early today, while trying to put up his car, by Wendell P. Childs, the garage night watchman, who had just awakened from a dream of burglars.

Childs was later held in Malden District Court on his own recognizance for a continued hearing on January 17 on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon. The police found brass knuckles on him, as well as the revolver with which he shot Donahue.

Childs fell asleep at midnight. At 2 o'clock Donahue came along to put up his car. Finding the front door locked and getting no response to his knocks, Donahue entered by an unlocked rear door. He was crossing the garage to open the front door when the night watchman awakened.

Childs said later he had been dreaming of burglars and he thought Donahue was one. He blazed away twice, inflicting two flesh wounds on Donahue. The racket brought the police.

AID FOR GALLIVAN'S WHITE PLAGUE FIGHT

Dispatches today from Washington said that Congressman James A. Gallivan of Boston had received assurances of strong backing from the National Conference of Tuberculosis Secretaries in his latest effort to procure a definite policy in relation to the "white plague."

The Congressman has introduced into the House of Representatives a bill to provide care and treatment for citizens of the United States afflicted with tuberculosis.

The bill has been referred to the committee on appropriations, of which Congressman Gallivan is a member. It provides:

Mrs. Lyndhurst Bruce, formerly Camille Clifford, noted actress, who returns this week to Boston, the scene of her early triumphs.

CAMILLE CLIFFORD, WAR WIDOW, WILL RETURN TO BOSTON

Camille Clifford is coming back this week to Boston—the city where she made her start on the theatrical ladder which was to carry her up to the lofty heights of a titled British marriage.

The girl who came to Boston in 1899 as a Norwegian immigrant, poor enough and beautiful enough to satisfy the most extravagant romancer, returns to the scene of her early triumphs as the Honorable Mrs. Henry Lyndhurst Bruce, widow of a gallant young English Baronet who fell at Ypres, fighting for his country.

The field of musical comedy, to which Camille Clifford timidly brought her youthful charms, never produced a more romantic tale than this actual life story.

The titled beauty hints that she may enter the "movies." Her real life, to date, is pointed out as equal to anything in "reel life."

In Boston the Honorable Mrs. Bruce will visit friends in Roxbury and on the South Shore. She will renew scenes of her early days in Boston, days of poverty, of stage struggle and of dawning success.

AN EARLY TRIUMPH.

One of the topics of the day in Boston in the theatrical season of 1902-3 was the New York girl in "The Prince of Pilsen" at the Tremont Theatre.

Remember the "Song of the Cities" in that production, eight girls representing Boston, New York, Washington, New Orleans and so on.

A bit in the municipal octette was "Maude Manhattan, the New York Girl." She was named on the program as Camille Clifford.

The girl was originally Camilla Otterson from Christiania, Norway. She left her aunt's home to emigrate to this country. She arrived Boston on the Pavonia at the age of fifteen.

In 1902 she saw Colonel Henry W. Savage's advertisement for chorus recruits for "The Prince of Pilsen." She brought her Scandinavian beauty to the stage door and was accepted. She adapted her own name, Camilla Otterson to "Camille Clifford" for stage purposes. Clifford was a name in her family at home.

The rest of her story is part of stage and society history. She was given a chance as the New York Girl and scored from the start.

Boston and New York raved over her. The Gibson Girl was a furore in art and magazine circles. Colonel Savage held a beauty show to pick a Gibson Girl and Camille Clifford won handily. More fame.

MARRIED A BARONET.

And now comes the Honorable Henry Lyndhurst Bruce, son of Baron Aberdare of Wales. He was a cleancut, brave and likable chap and Camille Clifford accepted his earnest love. They were married despite the furious opposition of the Honorable Henry's father.

ARMY BILL SAID TO BE DOOMED IN CONGRESS

By International News Service.

Washington, Jan. 10.—The question of national preparedness today brushed aside the international situation at the White House. President Wilson got word from the Capitol that the bill providing for a larger army was doomed to defeat and that the bigger navy measure was in serious danger.

The President is planning vigorous measures to get the bills through. He will hold conferences with the various leaders in both houses at once. Representative James Hay, chairman of the House Military Affairs Committee, probably will be the first of these leaders to confer with the President. He will call at the White House tomorrow.

100,000 MECHANICS FOR NAVY RESERVE

Washington, Jan. 10.—The enrollment of 100,000 skilled mechanics for the Naval Reserve is the aim of a campaign begun by the Naval League of the United States. The first step in the movement is the circulation of petitions for the establishment of naval reserve training camps similar to the Plattsburg (N. Y.) military camp. It is expected the committee will have 500,000 signatures on the petitions by March 1, for presentation to Congress.

U. S. CAMPAIGN AGAINST BANK USURY

Washington, Jan. 10.—The climax to the campaign against the charging of alleged usurious rates of interest by American national banks which has been prosecuted by John Skelton Williams, Comptroller of the Currency, came today when Comptroller Williams today submitted to the House of Representatives his annual report, in which he gives a mass of detailed information regarding the exaction of excessive interest rates by national banks and urges upon Congress drastic measures to punish offenders. He says:

"Usury uncheked means depopulation, hopelessness, thriftlessness and resulting loss of producing capacity."

"If there should be an amendment," the Comptroller adds, "to the national bank act authorizing and directing the Department of Justice to bring suit against usurers upon information furnished either through the Comptroller of the Currency or through other sources, the practice of usury in all the national banks throughout the country can be stopped. I therefore earnestly recommend to the present Congress the passage of such a law."

PUT UP TO 12 PER CENT.

The Comptroller's report states that on the outbreak of the European war New York banks increased their normal interest rates to as high as 12 per cent in some cases. Through a check to publish a list of names of New York banks not charging usurious rates, Comptroller Williams says he succeeded in forcing the banks to reduce their charges to 6 per cent.

Taking up the campaign among the country banks the Comptroller publishes long tables of rates charged in which he shows that rates as high as 240 per cent were exacted by some banks. Many of these high rates, the Comptroller concedes were charged on small loans for short periods but he cites the instances of three Oklahoma banks which, he declares, show average rates of interest charged on all their loans of 25 per cent, 36 per cent and 40 per cent, respectively. In his tables the Comptroller refrains from giving the names of the banks.

The Comptroller appends to his report a letter written by Judge L. C. McNabb of Sequoyah County, Okla., entitled "The Crimes of the Usurer in Oklahoma: How they have Ruined the Small Farm Owner, the Tenant and the Workingman." This letter describes the pitiable condition brought about among the work people of rural communities due, it is alleged, to the usurious rates for money charged by the country bankers. Other evidence, the Comptroller introduced, attacks bankers in various sections of the country. Judge McNabb, the Comptroller says, was forced from the bench on account of his warfare on the usurers.

MANY RECOMMENDATIONS.

Comptroller Williams recommends to Congress, in his report, much legislation designed to prevent banks from being "broken from the inside." Among these recommendations are the following:

Prohibit officers from borrowing from their own banks and prohibit directors from borrowing except on authority of the directorate.

Require officers and employes to give surety bonds.

Limit the amount of a bank's money which may be lent to one firm, corporation or individual.

Prevent or limit payment of overdue drafts.

Require certificates of deposit to be signed by two officers.

Forbid officers and employes from altering by erasures or additions entries on the books of national banks.

Limit to 4 per cent. the interest to be paid on deposits, except when the discount rate fixed by the Federal Reserve Bank from time to time, whereupon banks in each Federal Reserve Bank's district may equal but not exceed that rate; provided, however, State banks or higher rates, in such cases the national banks in such State may equal the State rate.

Authorize national banks to establish branches in the United States, and permit branch banks in Alaska and insular possessions.

Authorize banks to charge a minimum of 25 cents for small loans.

Authorize the comptroller to bring actions against directors for bank losses due to violations of the banking laws.

Require bank directors responsible for losses through unlawful investments to make restitution to their banks.

Provide for service by directors on executive committees of banks in turn so that all may have the experience.

Empower the Comptroller to remove guilty directors.

Authorize consolidation of national banks.

Authorize the standardization of national bank bylaws.

Prevent delays in the taking of oaths by directors.

Limit deposits to eight or ten times capital and surplus.

Empower the Comptroller to fine banks for violations of bank laws.

Provide punishment for making excessive loans.

Prevent wildcat banking in the District of Columbia.

SUITOR SHOT BY GIRL WHO ENDS OWN LIFE

By International News Service.

Joliet, Ill., Jan. 10.—A girl known among church folks of Joliet as Miss Lillian Ogden Piper, fired a bullet into her brain today and died in the office of John R. Robart, after she had wounded him. The young man had been seen much in her company lately. The girl left a note saying:

"The wages of sin is death. I have been terribly wronged. Please notify my father, William Ogden, in Richmond, Va."

The girl was waiting in Robart's office when he arrived this morning.

"I'm through with you. I don't want to have anything to do with you," said the young manufacturer.

Then he turned his back and began opening his mail. The first letter was from a hardware store and showed that a revolver had been charged to him. As he gazed at the bill there was a shot. A revolver bullet tore into his neck. As he sprang to his feet the girl fired at him again, but his bullet went wild.

Then the girl turned the revolver on herself.

At the hospital Robart told his story.

"My real name is John Ulrich," he said. "Six years ago I left my wife and four children and good business in West Philadelphia, Pa., to run away with this girl.

"She, too, was married. Her name was Mrs. Lillian Ogden Piper, and her father, in Richmond, Va., is a prominent man, of old family."

Coming to Joliet and establishing himself as Robart, he prospered. The pretty young woman who had passed as his wife had her automobile, her home and her friends. Lately he had been showering attentions upon another woman. The other woman bought a revolver. It was charged to Robart as her husband. Today she went to his office to force a choice.

With Rash on Back and Arms. Also Over Face. Very Red. Formed Eruptions. Itched Badly.

HEALED BY CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT

"My little girl was five years old when a rash broke out on her back and arms and also all over her face. When it first came on it was very red and then it began to form into eruptions like smallpox, and her face was so full of the eruptions that you could not put a pin bird between them, and her eyes were closed. She was a terrible sight. She cried night and day the eruptions itched so badly, and I had to tie her hands so that she could not scratch. She also had a fever and was sick.

"The rash was very bad for three weeks. Then I got a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment and the eruption began to heal and after using three cakes of Cuticura Soap and two boxes of Ointment she was healed." (Signed) Mrs. Watson Haines, Garnerville, N. Y., Oct. 21, 1915.

CROWDS OF WOMEN BESIEGE MOHR COURT AT EARLY HOUR

HARRY L. SHAWCROSS, millhand, Johnston.

KIE TAYLOR, retired mill overseer, Woonsocket.

ROBERT D. HATES, decorator, Central Falls.

MICHAEL KHORAN, blacksmith, Providence.

EDWARD J. SULLIVAN, plumber, Providence.

WILLIAM H. DANN, grocer, Providence.

ORA O. HILL, farmer, South Scituate.

JOHN CURTIS, lumberman, North Scituate.

EPHRAIM H. HOWEY, farmer, North Smithfield.

CHARLES F. GREGAN, millhand, Harrisville.

JUROR REJECTED.

The work of selecting a tentative jury was completed at 1:30, fifteen veniremen having been examined. It was deemed probable, however, that many of the men would be excused because of peremptory challenges, and that the end of jury picking was not necessarily in sight.

Because of the stormy weather, Judge Charles F. Stearns had phoned sent into the talesmen, and ordered recess for only forty-five minutes.

The first intimation of a sensation came when Judge Stearns ordered Juror Carney to remain in his seat after the others had filed out of the room.

Attorney General Rice then asked Carney to take the witness stand. Carney was sworn.

"Is it not a fact that on Saturday you expressed a decided opinion in favor of Mrs. Mohr?" the court asked.

Joseph E. Aldrich of Pawtucket, an operator with the National Detective Agency of Providence, was then placed on the stand by the Attorney General.

DETECTIVE'S STORY.

Aldrich said that he called on Mr. Carney Saturday night. Aldrich said:

"I used a pretext that I was looking for an automobile accident and went into Carney's shop to inquire about it. After talking about fifteen minutes, I asked him what he thought about the Mohr case. He told me that he was a juror, but nevertheless he thought it was a shame that a woman like Mrs. Mohr should be charged with such a crime.

"Mrs. Mohr is doing wonderful work at the Vincent de Paul Home," said Mr. Carney, 'buying provisions and other necessities. I shall certainly favor Mrs. Mohr."

Attorney John J. Fitzgerald then asked:

"Who sent you out to interview the Mohr jurors?"

"I did not interview the Mohr jurors," replied Aldrich.

"You interviewed Carney," said Fitzgerald.

"I did."

"Did you interview any other jurors?" asked Fitzgerald.

DETECTIVE QUESTIONED.

"I called upon a number of people and found that they were Mohr jurors after I had talked with them," Aldrich said.

"Did Attorney-General Rice give you the names?" inquired Fitzgerald.

"No. I got them from my book, Mr. Goldowsky, general superintendent of the National Detective Agency," replied Aldrich.

Judge Stearns then interrupted and said:

"I want the counsel for the prosecution and for the defense to co-operate with the court in every way. I understand that there will be no further argument on this point. I will excuse Mr. Carney as a juror."

Adjournment was then taken until 2:30 p. m.

SPECTATORS SHUT OUT.

Although a throng of nearly 500 persons, the majority of them women, gathered outside the courthouse before court opened at 10.05 with the appearance of Judge Charles F. Stearns, they were not allowed to enter.

Only fifty seats were provided for spectators, and these were used for the veniremen. There was one hundred talesmen in the panel from which to select a jury, with another hundred in reserve.

Owing to the interest of Providence people with the Mohr case, however, it is believed that it will take several days to secure twelve unbiased men.

Mrs. Mohr was in the room of her counsel when court was opened, and the ten negroes were confined in a cell in the basement of the court house. George W. Healis, who has turned State's evidence, and who it is believed will be given his freedom for assisting the prosecution, was in the office of the Attorney-General.

CONFIDENT OF ACQUITTAL.

Through Attorney Cushing, Mrs. Mohr said: "I am confident of acquittal and of vindication. The charge against me is obviously false."

Assistant Attorney-General Abbott Philips was equally confident of conviction. He said:

"I cannot possibly see anything but a conviction. This is a plain open and shut case. We have the obvious motive for the killing—blood. So far as has been brought forward, nobody has any desire for Mohr's death except his wife. Certainly nobody but Mrs. Mohr could have held a grudge against Miss Burger."

"In addition to all this perfectly plain circumstantial evidence, we have the stories of the negroes Brown and Spellman formerly were in Mohr's employ and Mrs. Mohr was well acquainted with them. Healis was still in the doctor's employ when Mrs. Mohr got him to stop the automobile."

BATTLE AT DOOR.

No elaborate effort on the part of counsel for Mrs. Mohr to get her story before the jury without waiting for her on the stand was frustrated today. One woman's attorney had planned to take a deposition so that it would not be necessary for her to testify. They neglected to notify the complainant of the Attorney General as required by law, however, and were not permitted to take her deposition.

At the opening of court, a small contempt was started when William H. Lewis, former Assistant United States District Attorney asked to be appointed counsel for Brown. The court overruled the application, but appointed John B. Edwards, a colored attorney, as counsel for Spellman. Lewis then declared that he would appear for Brown without compensation.

Attorney Cushing, for Mrs. Mohr, then addressed the court. He read a lengthy petition, in which he asked the court to refuse to admit part of the alleged confession of the negroes.

"I see no reason to pass on the ruling of Judge Rathbun," said Judge Stearns. Then addressing an officer the court said:

"Send in the Jury Commissioner."

While awaiting the arrival of the talesmen, Attorney Lewis for Brown moved a severance on the ground that he had been given counsel lately, he ordinee would have but one peremptory challenge, while with a severance, five challenges would be available.

Judge Stearns overruled this motion on the ground that it was identical with one filed and overruled two weeks ago. Attorney Cushing took an exception to the ruling.

TWO JURORS QUICKLY PICKED.

Attorneys Cushing and Fitzgerald then conferred with Judge Stearns regarding the matter of challenging jurors.

The talesmen were called a short time later, and Carney was the first called by Clerk Rice. Two of the three absentees had sent satisfactory excuses, but Judge Stearns remained an interface to look on Frank C. Polquin.

Mrs. Mohr, who had recovered much of the tranquillity which has distinguished her since the time of the murder, appeared much interested in the proceedings. She addressed many whispered questions to her attorneys, and gazed intently at the veniremen.

The first talesman examined was Frank E. Riggs of Cranston. He declared that he had formed an opinion and was excused.

Hebert P. Wilson, a textile manufacturer, was tentatively selected as the first juror after much bickering between counsel.

When examined Wilson said he thought both Dr. Mohr and Mrs. Mohr were undesirables and persons whom he would not pick as bosom friends. He believed, however, that he could form an impartial opinion on any evidence he might hear.

The second juror chosen was Hugh Carnes of Providence, a tinsmith.

BOX FILLED PROMPTLY.

At 12:52, half of the jury box had 12 occupants. However, under the Rhode Island general laws of 1909, the counsel for the prosecution and for the defence do not challenge the jurors until after twelve have been tentatively chosen.

Mrs. Mohr, sitting between John J. Fitzgerald and James McCartin, paused on every juror selected, and was observed to shake her head several times to signify that she did want the man under examination.

Following a ten-minute recess at noon, Attorney Lewis, who now represents Cecil Victor Brown, objected to Mr. Winsor as a juror. Lewis said that inasmuch as Winsor had distinctly stated that his mind was prejudiced against the Mohr family for the past ten or fifteen years that he could not qualify. Judge Stearns overruled the objection.

500 STAND IN RAIN.

Despite the steady fall of rain, which began early today, a throng of women had gathered about the court house at 7 o'clock. Standing patiently with umbrellas raised above their heads, they waited for the opening of the doors. From time to time other women appeared, until shortly before 10 o'clock there were nearly 500 on hand, clamoring for admission.

As soon as the doors were opened a mad rush was made for the courtroom, but a force of twenty-five deputy sheriffs, on duty in the courthouse, prevented anyone from entering the courtroom. Outside of those immediately concerned in the case, no one was allowed to enter, and this policy will be continued until after the jury is picked.

A big array of tables for the newspaper and special writers, who have come from Boston, New York and elsewhere, takes up considerable room in the small courtroom. The chairs for the defendants and counsel also occupy a good deal of space, so that when these are in use there will be but fifty seats for spectators.

"RED-BOOK" INTEREST.

Although this fact is more or less generally known, hundreds of women, in automobiles and on foot, continued to arrive at the Court House, secretly hoping that they might be able to copy their way in. All were anxious to be present at the trial, the anticipation of which has stirred staid old Providence as it has never been stirred before.

The fact that Dr. Mohr's business was confined to women's patients, many of them members of the smart-est set in the state, has created an interest unprecedented in the history of criminal trials. Every woman in addition to learn if possible who were the doctor's patients, believing that their names will come out at the trial. Some of the women are fearful rather than hopeful, while others are actuated only by a desire to hear scandal.

It is expected that the famous "Little Red Book," in which the only record of Dr. Mohr's business was kept, will be produced in court and the disclosure of its contents is eagerly awaited.

Miss Florence Ormsby, Dr. Mohr's secretary in charge of his office here, and other employes of the Providence and Newport establishments of Dr. Mohr, are expected to supply testimony of the most sensational sort.

American Workmen Will Aid Their Country Without Conscription, Says Gompers

By Samuel Gompers.

President of the American Federation of Labor.

Washington, Jan. 10.

THE European war has taught this one fact, that people will fight for their country, whether that country stands as the embodiment of militarism and domination, or whether it typifies and is the standard-bearer of justice and democracy.

In Germany, Russia, France, Austria and Italy, compulsory military service obtains. Great Britain has thus far relied upon voluntary military service, and now proposes to press through Parliament a species of compulsory service.

I entertained the hope Britain might have avoided this step, that the appeal for volunteers would have satisfied all that the country might ask. Though I am quite removed from the direct sources of information, a still greater concentrated effort in that direction would, in my opinion, prove effective.

For us in the United States to attempt, however, to sit in judgment upon either the governmental proposition or the trade union meeting declaration against conscription, is not only purely academic on our part, but of questionable propriety as well as a lack of good judgment, particularly if we entertain the hope to be of service later in the interest of peace.

It is easy for us in far removed from the field of action to assume the position of critics of either the one or the other proposition. The fighting people of Great Britain will do their duty, and there are no better representatives of the great masses of the people of Britain than are the trade unionists.

As to what position American organized labor would take in the event of our country's need must remain unquestioned. Their history of patriotic devotion in the struggle for the maintenance of the Union and for the abolition of human slavery and during the Spanish-American War, attest the loyalty and self-sacrifices of America's workers.

Should the time ever come, and I pray that it may not, the toilers in our republic will give a good and honorable account of themselves, and this, too, without conscription, without compulsory military service.

Swamped

When a man's efficiency is on the decline—when after a long day of effort the mass of work still stares him in the face—it's time to find out what's wrong.

Frequently a lack of certain necessary nutritive elements, in the daily diet, lessen mental and physical activity. A prime factor in efficiency is right feeding.

No food supplies, in such splendid proportion, all the rich nourishment of the field grains, for keeping the mental and physical forces upbuilt and in trim, as

Grape-Nuts

Made of whole wheat and malted barley, this famous pure food supplies the vital mineral salts, often lacking in the ordinary daily diet, but imperative in building sturdy mental, physical and nervous energy.

Then, too, there's a wonderful return of power for the small effort required in the digestion of Grape-Nuts, which, with cream or good milk, supplies complete nourishment.

SEEK NAME OF BOY DEAD IN MYSTERY

The most promising clew was the name of a clothing firm found on a mackinaw coat the boy wore. This was Sanderson & Thompson, clothiers, of Amherst, and the name led the police to believe the lad might prove to be a student at the Massachusetts Agricultural College at Amherst.

Harold M. Gore, assistant physical director of the college, viewed the body, said that though he could not identify the youth, he thought he has seen him before.

Mr. Gore telephoned the college, asking that other representatives be sent here to look at the body in the hope of making the identification. A number of persons from the college were expected at the morgue late today.

Another clew was the letter "S" on the boy's belt buckle.

An inspector was assigned to try to locate the man who sat next to the mystery victim in the theatre. The police today established the fact that the youth entered the theatre alone, but they thought it possible that before becoming unconscious he might have said something of his condition to the man who occupied the seat at his elbow.

TOPPLED OVER IN SEAT.

An attache of the theatre told the authorities he saw the boy enter the house at 1 p. m. Saturday, and he was unaccompanied and seemed to be perspiring very freely.

This attache said he escorted the boy to his seat, and noticed him particularly because the youth behaved strangely. He swayed from side to side. The attache said there was no odor of liquor on the boy's breath and no indication that he had been drinking.

The attache said he called the attention of the theatre's special policeman to the boy, and that a moment after that the boy toppled over in his seat, and when picked up was unconscious and bleeding from the nose.

The boy was removed to the Relief Hospital, where he remained in his comatose condition until he died at 7:35 Sunday morning.

The description given to the authorities, had the appearance, both in person and dress, of being a collegian. It is hoped to learn if possible who were the doctor's patients, believing that their names will come out at the trial. Some of the women are fearful rather than hopeful, while others are actuated only by a desire to hear scandal.

It is expected that the famous "Little Red Book," in which the only record of Dr. Mohr's business was kept, will be produced in court and the disclosure of its contents is eagerly awaited.

Dr. Cabot Favors Locking Up Man with a Cough

"WE oppose a man who takes a gun and shoots another, but if he carries a gun that consists of a cough loaded with tubercular bacilli we haven't quite got around to locking him up," declared Dr. Hugh Cabot in a lecture at the Boston Y. M. C. A. in connection with "Health Week."

"As yet we haven't quite realized that the individual has no right which the community is bound to respect to its own disadvantage. The present epidemic of pneumonia shows that we cannot take care of ourselves. The living conditions in a big city make it impossible that our first consideration be the community health. Public schools, movie theatres and street cars are all tremendous disseminators of disease."

CAR RACES IN FRONT OF TRAIN

An in-bound, crowded trolley car from Lowell crashed through one of the gates at North Cambridge Junction, where the Massachusetts avenue trolley track crosses the Boston & Maine at grade, at 6:20 today. The trolley car stopped on the railroad tracks, fifteen feet in front of the engine of a passenger train which had just come to a stop at the station. Passengers were frightened, first by the crash of the car through the crossing gate and next by seeing the railroad engine so near them.

The car had been brought to a stop with the air brakes just outside the gate and was waiting for the train to start and pass over the crossing on its way in to Boston. Suddenly the brakes released their grip apparently, for the car jumped forward, smashed through the gate, then settled on the track.

After the car stopped a second time the farther gate was raised and the car was sent along with no further damage.

PORTLAND HUNT FOR EX-MAYOR KEARNS

Search for the missing former Mayor Thomas F. Kearns of Waltham was resumed today by Boy Scouts, in spite of the clew which was uncovered in Portland, Me.

Louis Panella, a restaurant keeper in Middle street, Portland, came to Waltham with a story of having seen and spoken to the missing ex-Mayor in Portland.

The police of Portland searched every hotel and boarding house in the neighborhood named by Panella, without finding anyone else who had seen the missing man or a man resembling him.

Panella said he knew the ex-Mayor well. He told the police that he saw Kearns walking in the street in Portland Thursday, and spoke to him at that time. Kearns was slightly disguised, Panella says; his mustache was shaved off and he stated that he was stopping at the boarding house.

Panella says Kearns wore a silk-faced overcoat and a soft hat.

The water in the Charles River was lowered by opening the dam and details of Metropolitan and Waltham police dragged the bottom of the river with grappling irons. The river was covered thoroughly from the Bemis Bridge, in Waltham, to the Galen Street Bridge, in Watertown, and there was no trace of the missing man.

At St. Charles Church, Rev. Father P. J. Walsh, the pastor, and a friend of ex-Mayor Kearns, asked his flock to pray for the missing man, and expressed the hope that Mr. Kearns would soon be found, either dead or alive, in order that the anxiety of his large circle of friends would be relieved.

Mrs. A. E. Rogers, the sister of the missing man, who collapsed under the strain, is still at the Waltham Hospital in a very serious condition.

AMELIE RIVES' PLAY STARTS OUT WELL

By FRED J. McISAAC.

"Blackmail," a play in a prelude and four acts by Amelie Rives (Princess Troubetzkoy), was produced by Harrison Grey Fiske and George Mooser at the Wilbur Theatre Saturday night. It was the first production on any stage. The cast was as follows:

Sylvia	Regine Wallace
Kinnie Ford	Kenneth Hunter
Major Stone	Albert Bruning
Sam	Richard Quilter
Judge Adam Torridge	DeWitt C. Jennings
Mrs. Reynolds	Eleanor Gordon
Dossy Willes	Frances Bendtsen
Judge Carson	Charles Laite
Walter Gale	Philip Perry
Robert Hill	Herbert Ranson
Oliver Ellis	Harrison Hunter
Molly Satre	Edwin Nicander

"Blackmail" sounds like something awful. It spells old mills at night, rivers of real water and missing marriage certificates.

It is said to be about the tenth name the Princess selected for this play, which isn't nearly so wildly melodramatic as it sounds.

UNFAIR TO THE PRESS.

"Blackmail" is a society play. It deals with wealthy folks who are held up by a certain newspaper and compelled to disgorge or see their infractions of the moral laws in cold type.

It is rather unfair to the press of the country that such a play should be put upon the boards, for the literal-minded public is apt to think that the Mentor is a typical newspaper, despite the Princess' well-meant effort to show that it isn't by introducing a rival editor, whose purpose is to expose the blackmailing editor and put him in jail.

Somebody once said that when a woman author tries to create a hero she usually makes a cad. The Princess' hero, Oliver Ellis, editor of the Torch, is not a cad, but he is a marvelous prig.

Much as you abhor blackmailing, you feel more sympathy for the crafty old Major Stone, than you do for Ellis the righteous one as performed by Harrison Hunter.

Speaking from a long newspaper experience, I can boldly say that nobody who looks and acts like Mr. Hunter ever exposed any blackmailers or grafters or, indeed, ever edited a live newspaper.

GORGEOUSLY MOUNTED.

A lot of money has been spent in mounting this play, which is very gorgeous. The cast also is exceedingly competent with one or two slight exceptions. Take the two blackmailers, Albert Bruning, the Major, and Judge Torridge, played by DeWitt Jennings. Here are a couple of merry brigands indeed. And Eleanor Gordon, the versatile and attractive stock favorite. She is one of the bright spots of the show as the western widow with the shoplifting daughter who submits to blackmail with loud protests.

Edwin Nicander, as the plucky little society man who braves the blackmailer to his lair, but who is henpecked by his attractive wife, is another excellent performer, and so is Lucille Weston who has a part not unlike that she played in "Under Cover." Frances Bendtsen as an effeminate society informer was capital, and so was Kenneth Hunter as an Italian tenor. Regine Wallace was attractive as Sylvia, daughter of the blackmailing editor.

The play itself, aside from the questionable taste of its subject, is well written and gripping until the last act. How many great dramatists there would be if there were no last acts.

The Princess fell down so hard in the last act she must have hurt herself. The ending of the play is weak, unconvincing and absurd, and left the blackmailer quite unpunished, although prepared to mend his ways.

DEFER OPENING OF 'THE WOMAN HUNTER'

The first performance of "The Woman Hunter" on any stage will be given at the Castle Square Theatre tomorrow evening, instead of this afternoon as originally announced. The box office will remain open, and seats purchased for the postponed performances may be exchanged for any other performance, or the money will be refunded. The cast of "The Woman Hunter," will include Mr. Craig, Mr. Carlton, Mr. Meek, Mr. Friebus, Miss Barnicoat, Miss Croly and Miss Mary Young.

Clear, Peachy Skin Awaits Anyone Who Drinks Hot Water

Says an inside bath, before breakfast helps us look and feel clean, sweet, fresh.

Sparkling and vivacious—merry, bright, alert—a good clear skin and a natural, rosy, healthy complexion are assured only by pure blood. If only every man and woman could be induced to adopt the morning inside bath, what a gratifying change would take place. Instead of the thousands of sickly, anaemic-looking men, women and girls, with pasty or muddy complexions; instead of the multitudes of "nerve wrecks," "rundowns," "brain fags" and pessimists, we should see a virile, optimistic throng of rosy-cheeked people everywhere.

An inside bath is had by drinking each morning, before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and ten yards of bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour fermentations and poisons, thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Those subject to sick headache, biliousness, nasty breath, rheumatism, colds, and particularly those who have a pallid, sallow complexion and who are constipated very often, are urged to obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store, which will cost but a trifle, but is sufficient to demonstrate the quick and remarkable change in both health and appearance, awaiting those who practice internal sanitation. We must remember that inside cleanliness is more important than outside, because the skin does not absorb impurities to contaminate the blood, while the pores in the thirty feet of bowels do.—Advertisement.

HANSON SHOWS OFFICE SELF-SUPPORTING

Thure Hanson, State Commissioner of Weights and Measures, who was held up by Governor McCall in his inaugural message as a model for other State officials to follow, filed his annual report with the Legislature today, showing that under his two years' administration he has put his office on a self-supporting basis.

Commissioner Hanson's report shows that when he assumed office the income was $227.50 a year and the annual expense $20,000. Last year the income was $20,025, and the expense of administration had not increased.

State officials, angered by Governor McCall's inaugural commendation of Hanson, have privately charged that Governor McCall failed to explain that the increase in Hanson's departmental income was largely due to the fact that the issuance of hawkers' and pedler's licenses was transferred to the Weights and Measures Department from the Secretary of State's office.

Explaining this change, Commissioner Hanson says the average income from said licenses had been $12,947 a year for five years, and that although he has had charge of these licenses only since June 11, the income to November 30 was $19,320. He says that systematic enforcement of the law will double even the increase of this year.

He says that his department last year adjusted 41,282 scales, weights and measures, sealed 550,096 weighing instruments and condemned 18,353. Hanson prosecuted 195 cases for short weights and measures and secured 172 convictions. In addition, seventeen cases were defaulted.

Hanson reports that 12,000 packages of foodstuffs were weighed and that they showed a net overweight of 15 5-16 pounds.

BLUE AGAIN NAMED FOR HEALTH SERVICE

Washington, Jan. 10.—President Wilson this afternoon sent to the Senate the nomination of Ruppert Blue, surgeon general of the Public Health Service, to succeed himself.

'BUSTERS' KEPT BUSY WITH WAR HORSES

Mettlesome cavalry chargers and heavy draft horses for artillery are being received, examined and made ready for shipment at the equine "war depot," at the newly fitted Union Market stock yards in Watertown, which has finally won permission to serve as one of the horse camps for the European conflict.

Not the least exciting item in the general rush of work is "busting" some of the raw steeds. Many of the horses in the first shipment of 350 which arrived yesterday came unbroken.

But the Franco-British authorities handling the shipment end of the job were ready for this contingency. Among the men at the yard are Harry Janicke and Drew Stanfield from Winnipeg, Canada, champion "broncho busters." They tame the raw steeds.

A second batch was due at Watertown today. Wednesday all the horses received up to that day will be moved to Charlestown and aboard the S. S. Ultonia, for the voyage abroad.

The yard is equipped with military thoroughness. The old buildings have been cleared away. The Boston & Maine has spent $45,000 in putting the yard into shape. Four new sheds, 20 by 160 feet, have been put up. A fifth building, 60 by 640 feet, serves as inspection and holding shed. The Franco-Canadian Steamship Company has an office at the yard for Managing Director R. M. Williams. General Foreman Snowden calls it an ideal depot for receiving, selecting and shipping steeds.

SCHOOL HISTORY IS CALLED 'DECEITFUL'

Public schools of the United States and the history text books they use are accused by Senor S. Martinez de Alva of "deceitful teachings," which cause trouble between nations. In a speech at Wellesley before the Society to Eliminate Causes of War, Senor de Alva said in part:

"Under the cloak of soundness and expediency the school has knowingly instilled in the infant mind fallacious premises and unjustifiable generalizations. And specially, to the deceitful teaching of school histories I attribute most of the wrong that has been done and will be done for many years still unborn."

Gift for Mrs. Comstock.

Mrs. Ida Comstock has a new mahogany rocker for the parlor of her home at No. 228 Huntington avenue, the gift of a surprise party of friends. The presentation was made, in behalf of the assembly, by Arthur Downing. Entertainment and dancing followed the presentation.

Official: Spell It Merrimack; Don't Forget 'K'

The United States has put the "k" back into Merrimack.

Merrimack—the river—is now officially spelled that way, and NOT Merrimac as many folk have been spelling it.

United States Senator Gallinger of New Hampshire took the matter up with the nation's Geographic Board, and the Board has handed down in this manner:

"Merrimack River, Massachusetts and New Hampshire. (Not Merrimac.)"

SOMERVILLE WANTS PENSION CANCELLED

Mayor Cliff of Somerville today petitioned the Legislature for action to relieve Somerville of the payment of a $600 annual pension to Chief of Police James R. Pollard of Wakefield. Pollard is a retired patrolman of Somerville, and a year after his retirement, it is said, secured the job as Wakefield's police chief. Mayor Cliff also asked the Legislature to amend the law relating to the removal and retirement of civil service employes, so that the law will not apply to members of the Somerville police force who are 70 years of age or over.

UPHOLD PURE FOOD LAW AMENDMENT

Washington, Jan. 10.—The Sherley amendment in the pure food law passed in 1911 to prevent fraudulent representations as to the curative or therapeutic values of drugs was held by the Supreme Court today to be constitutional. The decision was in the case of a "Consumption cure" libelled by government officers at Omaha, Neb., after being shipped from Chicago, Ill.

JOYCE SAYS MOTHER STOLE HIS CLOTHES

Mrs. Mary Joyce, 55, of Chambers street, was arraigned in East Boston court today, on charges of larceny brought against her by John J. Joyce, her son, of No. 314 Princeton street, East Boston. Joyce says that his mother paid a visit to his rooms during his absence and took away clothing valued at $53. The case was continued until tomorrow. Bail was fixed at $200.

John H. O'Neil Seriously Ill.

John H. O'Neil, forty-five, well known Somerville lawyer and former member of the School Committee of that city, is seriously ill at his home, Garfield avenue, Beachmont. He was stricken yesterday and was reported to have suffered a paralytic shock today.

$300,000 LEFT TO BOSTON MAN BY AUNT

James L. Byrne, the contractor, formerly a leader of the "Red Devil Democracy of Ward 20, has been left the entire $300,000 estate of Mrs. Louise E. Hamilton, the late owner of the Ritz Hotel, Portland, Ore.

Mrs. Hamilton was Miss Louise Dore, sister of Mr. Byrne's mother, and he was always her favorite nephew.

Formerly of Boston, she went to New York about 1893 and in the panic of that year lost nearly all of a not inconsiderable fortune in bad investments.

Going later to the Pacific Coast, she went into the hotel business and prospered. Her nephew had always kept in close touch with her, exchanging frequent letters and making or receiving occasional visits. Last Summer he spent some time in Portland as her guest.

Mr. Byrne has been in the contracting business upward of twenty-five years. His specialty has always been municipal work. He has had contracts in most of the cities and towns of Eastern Massachusetts.

Though born on Cape Cod and now living in Allston, Mr. Byrne spent most of his life in the Harvard street section of Dorchester.

He was a lieutenant in the O'Connell political faction there and a member of the Ward 20 Democratic Committee.

In 1910 he was the O'Connell candidate for superintendent of streets, but Louis K. Rourke got that position from Mayor Fitzgerald and Mr. Byrne was appointed to the $5,000 office of water commissioner. He was, however, rejected by the Civil Service Commission.

Thousands of Grip Victims in Boston

An average of almost one person in each family has a cough or cold of some sort.

Thousands of others are in danger of becoming infected if they do not use proper and immediate precautions.

It is a serious situation.

Two things are vitally important—first that we should learn how to prevent a cold—second that we should learn how to cure it if we do become infected.

In most cases the trouble starts with a simple cold.

What a Cold Is

A cold is a germ disease—often it is caused by the pneumoccus—the pneumonia germ.

The man whose system is in a strong and healthy condition, who gets plenty of exercise and fresh air, is seldom troubled with colds of any kind.

His system simply and easily repels the attacks of the disease germs.

The trouble with most of us is we do not take care of our general health.

We don't get enough fresh air.

We live in poorly ventilated houses.

We work in stuffy shops and offices.

We travel in ill-smelling, crowded street cars.

We over-dress and over-eat.

And as a result of it all the resistance of our systems is broken down.

The first unusual exposure to cold or dampness gives the ever present army of disease germs its chance, and immediately we begin to shiver and sneeze.

We say—we "have caught cold."

As a matter of fact we have simply allowed nature's fortifications to become so out of repair that the invading army marched in and took possession without opposition.

Now, after we have got the cold—or rather after the cold has got us, the real danger begins.

A neglected cold has been the death warrant of more people than there are alive in the world today.

Practically any cold can be cured if it is not neglected at the outset.

Practically any cold is dangerous if it is neglected.

How To Prevent a Cold

A good thing to remember at the outset is this: Fresh, pure air is the deadly enemy of cold germs.

Get out into the fresh air—exercise in it—drink deep of it—sleep with plenty of fresh air coming in at the window. The living room should be warm, but always well ventilated.

Do more walking and less street car riding. Drink plenty of pure water—a couple of glasses each morning when you get up.

Use plenty of cold water in bathing, especially on the face and throat and chest.

Let the air get to your throat and neck—don't bundle up too much.

Eat simple and wholesome food and not too much of it.

Observe these simple rules—and you will forget what a cold feels like.

Incidentally you will find yourself amazingly free from sickness of every sort.

How To Cure a Cold

First and foremost if you want to cure a cold don't pamper it.

Do not shut yourself up in a hot stuffy room and dose yourself with hot drinks.

Get plenty of fresh air.

Drink cold water—bathe face and throat and chest with cold water. Eat sparingly.

And then in order to help nature throw off its extra burden—take a few doses of Hill's Cascara Bromide Quinine Tablets.

You will be surprised to find how easily even a troublesome cold is gotten rid of.

Hill's Cascara Bromide Quinine Tablets is a standard old fashioned remedy that has been curing colds for fifteen years. It is known and sold by practically every druggist in the United States.

It is thoroughly standard—perfectly harmless—has no unpleasant after-effects—it acts as a gentle tonic to promote vigorous, wholesome circulation of the blood and as a mild laxative to carry off the cold germs, after the pure blood and fresh air have destroyed them.

The Danger of Delay

At the first sign of a cold in the head or lungs take Hill's Cascara Bromide Quinine Tablets. The danger lies in delay. Be sure to get the genuine—the box with the Red Top and with Mr. Hill's Portrait on it. Every drug store has it. Hill's Cascara Bromide Quinine Tablets are guaranteed to cure a cold in twenty-four hours and ordinary grip in three days. If they do not, your druggist will refund your money.

...RTON PLEADS CAUSE OF THE ARMENIANS

After Rev. Dr. James L. Barton of the American Board of Missions told Boston ministers at the joint meeting today in the Park Street Church that a million Armenians had suffered from recent Turkish persecutions, the ministers adopted a resolution calling on President Wilson to take some step toward preventing the killing of Armenians. The resolution follows:

"Resolved, that we, ministers of Greater Boston, assembled at a joint meeting in Park Street Church, do protest against the Armenian atrocities and call upon the President of the United States to use his official influence to stop these massacres."

Rev. Dr. Barton gave a vivid description of the atrocities against the Armenians in a series of quotations from letters of the United States consuls in the Turkish empire.

"I do not give you stories of these atrocities from letters of missionaries, but from the consuls of the United States, who have sent their reports to our government," said Dr. Barton.

"We are now trying to save the remnant of this race. There are 150,000 now in Aleppo in need of food and clothing. Many are women and children. From reliable sources I can say there are about one-fifth as the Turks who are in favor of this persecution of the Armenians.

"One-half of the 2,000,000 Armenians have suffered from this persecution. There are about 100,000 Armenian refugees in Russia, 1,000 in Persia and about 4,000 in Egypt. Already in this country we have raised between $200,000 to $300,000 to help refugees. James J. Storrow of Boston is head of the committee of relief."

The ministers held later a service of prayer for the suffering Armenians, and a collection for the relief fund was taken up.

URGE CONTROL OF WATER SUPPLIES

State oversight of the private water supplies of hotels and other public resorts is urged by the State Health Department in the annual report to the Legislature. The Department also recommends State supervision of the private supplies of farms and dairies, for the prevention of typhoid and other communicable diseases. Annual inspection of spring waters that are sold extensively is also suggested. The Department estimates that there are 2500 private water supplies in the State.

GRAHAME-WHITE STORM CENTRE IN AERO WORLD

Mrs. Claude Grahame-White, who was Miss Dorothy Caldwell Taylor of New York. It is said the aviator will contest the action for divorce which his wife has instituted against him.—Photo by Foley.

New York, Jan. 10.—Gossip that has made the aviator Claude Grahame-White the central figure in stories that have agitated London clubs, drawing rooms and military circles for months has been explained.

It has been learned authoritatively that Grahame-White purposes to contest the divorce suit initiated by his wife in London.

Grahame-White, it is understood, is not so anxious to maintain his present marital relations the married Miss Dorothy Caldwell Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bertrand Leroy Taylor of New York, in England, in June, 1912) as he is to remain in such position that he cannot be expected to contract another alliance.

The aviator's friendship with the actress whom his wife is expected to name has been conspicuous, but that love of freedom which has characterized the flyer is said to make him anxious to avoid any closer relationship.

The point in most of the stories about Grahame-White was that the aviator had been caught spying in the service of Britain's enemies; that he and his actress friend had been arrested and taken to the Tower of London, and that he had been shot as a spy.

Rumors to that effect were printed in various English newspapers. Grahame-White had not been seen about his usual haunts for many weeks. The publications so incensed him that he went to the London Evening News and asked that his denial be printed.

Not only was the story absurd, did he say, as was proved by his presence in the London newspaper office, but every unpleasant hint it in was untrue.

Grahame-White pointed out that he had been merely "in the country with friends" and that he had not been in the Royal Naval Air Squadron for three months.

Grahame-White, as a matter of fact, never was suspected by his superiors of spying or of conducting himself, so far as the enemy was concerned, in a manner which, in the slightest reflected upon him.

There were three reasons why he did not get on well in the service. His resented authority and restraint, and didn't agree with Lieutenant John C. Porte, like himself, a flight commander, but Grahame-White's superior in office. In the second place, while in the service, he kept on building aircraft at his works at Hendon. According to the rules of the service he should not have been engaged in any profitable occupation outside his work for his country. Then, there was some dissatisfaction with the craft he was turning out.

Added to these troubles, Grahame-White, fond of amusement, and particularly of night life, found early morning reporting for duty irksome, and found, too, that the life he was leading was increasingly expensive.

Financial difficulties, it is said, finally induced him to drop out of sight that he might recuperate. It was while he was thus "lying low" that the stories were circulated about him.

His aversion to discipline and his disinclination to abandon his manufacturing business finally led to hints that his resignation would be acceptable, Grahame-White at once agreed and ceased to be a Flight Commander, in which rank he had rendered distinguished service.

But in his withdrawal there was no hint of such scandal as had been bruited about regarding him.

Every woman can have an attractive figure and plump shoulders and arms. Dr. Whitney's secret has done it for thousands of others and will do it for you.

Mrs. B. W. Abbott, formerly of Boston, now of 472 Eighth avenue, New York City, writes me: "I was very thin when I learned of your treatment four years ago. By following your course I gained 12 pounds and will keep the weight. I am the picture of health with rosy cheeks, just as when I was a girl.

The beauty of this treatment is that you can have a free liberal trial sent in plain wrapper and test it yourself in the privacy of your own home. The trial treatment alone in many cases has added five pounds. You will realize that a new day has dawned for thin people and that you need go through life the victim of a thin, unattractive figure, or countless complexion ills. I was one of the most discouraged women that ever tried before finding Dr. Whitney's Secret. I am 5 feet 4 inches tall and weighing now 150 pounds, while Mrs. Newbury's weight is 145 pounds. Her age is 50 years. "I gained 40 pounds. It did more than you said it would."

The trial will prove that you may have as attractive a figure as any one, filling out the hollow places, gain plump, perfect arms, neck and limbs, and by special treatment No. 3 increase the chest measurement from 4 to 6 inches.

If you will drop a line right away to O. L. Jones Co., 165 Friend Bldg., Elmira, N. Y., enclosing ten cents to defray part packing and postage, by return mail you will receive a full five days' treatment, giving the proof that real color and better health and figure can be yours.

Please say whether you want No. 1 for increasing flesh all over the body for both men and women, or No. 2 for women exclusively, as only one can be sent.

"WORLD STATE" OUTLINED AT MEETING

Suggestions for bringing about a permanent world's peace were made at the closing session this afternoon in Faneuil Hall of the Society to Eliminate Economic Causes of War. B. L. Bridgman, author of several books on international law, outlined a World State to administer the affairs of all nations.

Former State Senator Roger Sherman Hoar, secretary-treasurer of the World Peace League, said he expected one more great war—"one great war to test whether some international agreement is as indissoluble federal constitution" or a mere "scrap of paper."

Other speakers urged immigration as a preventative of war, and said there was need of an international language.

INTER-NATION PLA

Mr. Bridgman gave details of a plan for an "Inter-Nation." He said the United States could invite the proposed World Legislature to meet, and could start the body to working. He continued:

"The world army would supersede all national armies and there would be no need of national navies. In order to prevent unjustly heavy burdens on the small nations the world army might be apportioned by population to all nations which had only one representative in the World Legislature, and according to representation to all other nations. In order to guard against riot or revolution in any country the world government would station sufficient of its own army in each country to reinforce the civil police and to enforce order. All fortifications on national frontiers would be abolished, and national armies would be disbanded. All military training would be discontinued, save such as should be given at the world military academy and to the world troops. Manufacture of military supplies would be forbidden, save by the world government or under its regulation.

"Then, under the protection of world law, enforced by the world police, backed by the world army, if military force were necessary, trade and travel would penetrate to all parts of the world.

IMMIGRATION VALUABLE.

Walter Wood of Philadelphia, said: "Immigration must continue. If economic causes for war are considered. Shutting out other nations from the United States will serve to aggravate ill-feeling already existing. The mixing of many nationalities here in America is, and always should be, an obstacle to war.

"I believe, therefore, this society, which would make war impossible through economic adjustment must encourage immigration."

Edward S. Payson, president of the Emerson Piano Company, said:

"It is absolutely foolish for any society trying to work out an economic basis, which will stand against war to neglect language as a most important factor. It almost goes without saying that no language now spoken will be satisfactory to all nations."

JUDGE CONNOLLY ON THE BENCH

Judge Thomas H. Connolly, former private secretary of Governor Walsh, who, at the conclusion of his term appointed him associate justice of the Brighton District Court, took his place on the bench today. Clerk of Court Daniel F. Cunningham read the commission appointing Mr. Connolly after which Judge Edward L. Logan welcomed him to the bench. A recess was then declared during which police, members of the bar and officials tendered the newly appointed judge a reception.

BRITAIN TIGHTENS UP ON PASSPORTS

Washington, Jan. 10.—Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, British Ambassador, today notified the State Department that his government will issue no more passports to British subjects of military age. Passports issued prior to November 15, 1915, will not be recognized by his government until they bear the official O. K. of the British Foreign Office. This action, it was presumed at the State Department, has been taken to prevent a possible exodus of men because of the conscription bill.

Longshoremen to Strike.

Baltimore, Jan. 10.—Four thousand longshoremen will strike today because they believe they are being oppressed by agencies employing them.

DERNBERG ASKS ETHICAL TEST FOR THE U. S.

Special to the International News Service and London Times.

Berlin, Jan. 10.—Speaking in Berlin at a public lecture on America, Dr. Bernhard Dernberg passed the following judgment on the United States:

"Anybody who regards all the Americans as pure materialists does them wrong. They are English in language, habits, religion and puritanism, but they carry a great deal of moral baggage about with them. The people are anti-militarist and consider strong armaments unnecessary on an island, while they regard a numerous army as too dangerous in the hands of the President.

"The Americans, moreover, content themselves with a minimum of scientific knowledge. This fact, together with their excitable nature and their imaginations fed upon lying reports of atrocities, produces their sentimental feeling hostile to us.

"The American woman is deeply and simply religious and will not bring her son up to be a soldier. German deeds of heroism inspire in her a mixed feeling of horror and fear.

"It is very regrettable that the two peoples understand each other so little. The best way to clear our relations with America would be to put them on an ethical basis."

SAYS HAD SHARP SHOOTING PAINS

Roxbury Motorman Relates How He Was Cured by the New Plant Juice.

"You should take Plant Juice," is becoming a catch phrase in Boston, in answer to an interrogation as to the state of one's health. It is heard on the street, in the street car and theatre lobbies, and wherever people congregate. At present Plant Juice, the new herbal system tonic, is one of the most talked of preparations ever placed on the market, and it will give instant, positive relief in almost every case of stomach, liver and kidney trouble and rheumatism, and if continued, the results are permanent. It is Nature's own remedy, composed of medicinal roots, herbs, barks and berries, and does not contain mineral, narcotics or habit-forming drugs.

Boston people are daily calling at the demonstration of this remedy, and giving voluntary testimonials as to its merits, and the benefit they have received. One of the most recent is that of Mr. Neil McInnis, who resides at No. 39 Smith Street, Roxbury, is employed by the Boston Elevated Railway Company as motorman, and has many friends in this city.

NEIL McINNIS.

"For 3 years I have been troubled with indigestion and my case had all the headaches, dizzy spells, my food fermented in my stomach, had sour gas, which gave me great pain at times, and I always had to keep soda in the pit of my stomach. I had shoot-ing pains all through my body, could not sleep at night, and in the morning I felt all worn out and sore for my work. I had no appetite and could never eat any breakfast. I had tried everything in the way of medicine without any benefit, and finally, as a last resort, started to take Your Plant Juice. Three bottles of it have made a new man of me, my stomach is in fine condition and I have no more trouble of any kind. Plant Juice has certainly cured me and I feel very grateful."

The Plant Juice Man is at the Liggett Drug Company's store, corner of Washington and Avon Streets, where he is daily meeting the local public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy.—Advertisement.

'Nancy Refugees Scaremongers,' Says Prefect

By International News Service.

Paris, Jan. 10.—In a biting message to Parisians, Louis Mirman, prefect for Muerthe and Moselle, attacks the refugees who have come to Paris by the hundreds from the bombarded city of Nancy. He says:

"Perhaps you will encounter on the boulevards of Paris a bevy of scaremongers who, having fled from Nancy, are now trying to advertise themselves and at the same time excuse their flight by reciting fantastic tales of horror.

"The great majority of Nancians who have remained quietly at home would appreciate your disregarding these over-timid vendors of myths.

"The uncolored truth is that aside from slight property damage the three bombardments of Nancy have only resulted in six dead and less than ten wounded."

10 TOWNS NAMED AS LACKING SEWERS

Unsanitary conditions exist in thickly settled towns for lack of proper sewerage, the Health Department says. It cites Braintree, Bridgewater, Danvers, Marblehead, Reading, Rockland, Saugus, Stoughton, Plymouth and Whitman.

SHUSTER TO BE SENT TO THE FAR EAST

New York, Jan. 10.—The Herald this morning prints the following from San Francisco:

"Colonel E. M. House is not to be the only confidential adviser and unofficial ambassador of President Wilson and the State Department.

"Through shipping men here it was learned today that W. Morgan Shuster, who achieved world-wide fame as treasurer-general of Persia, has booked passage for the Fast East, where he will undertake a secret diplomatic mission for President Wilson in Japan and China.

"No details of Mr. Shuster's mission have been learned in this city, but it is reported tha' his work will lie chiefly in Japan, from which it is inferred that he will attempt to improve matters in the strained relationship which has existed between the United States and Japan since the days of the anti-alien land law controversy.

"Mr. Shuster will travel also to the Philippines in the course of his diplomatic mission. It is understood here that he will bring home to the President a report on Far Eastern 'atmosphere' for the future guidance of the administration in much the same way that Colonel House is to do in his European mission. This will include information on the Philippines question and a report on the present situation existing between Japan and China."

THREE KILLED IN DU PONT MILLS EXPLOSION

Wilmington, Del., Jan. 10.—Three men were blown to bits by an explosion in the glazing plant of mill No. 1 of the du Pont Powder Company at Carney's Point, N. J., early today. The structure, a small building, was shattered. The three men killed were the only ones working there at the time.

Early rumors had the death list running as high as forty-three and said that scores had been injured, but it was officially announced here at 9:15 a. m. that only three had been killed and none injured.

An official of the du Pont Company stated that the explosion was undoubtedly accidental and denied reports that a number of suspicious persons had been arrested after the blast.

PANAMA CANAL TOLL FIGHT IS RENEWED

Washington, Jan. 10.—The Panama Canal tolls fight was reopened in the Senate today. Senator Fall of New Mexico, introduced a bill to exempt not only American coastwise trading vessels, but also Pan-Americanvessels engaging in American trade from paying tolls for passage through the canal.

Why more than a Million People want to read Owen Johnson's Stories

Because, first of all, he's a big story-teller.

As exciting and as easy to read as "The Three Guardsmen"—his tales are of the New York of today.

Owen Johnson writes of you and me and the Lady,—or both of them,—and neither wastes nor minces words about it.

This is why "The Varmint"—"Stover at Yale"—"The Salamander" were so enormously successful. It is one reason why his new story is sweeping the Cosmopolitan off the news-stands faster than we can pile it on.

Its title is

"The Woman Gives"

a story of regeneration.

Besides—there are a round dozen more stories and articles,—any one of which would be enough to justify the usual magazine in announcing a feature number!

Just see:

Samuel Merwin goes on with his frank tales of "The Trufflers."

Wallingford gets rich quick in a new way.

Robert W. Chambers carries The Girl Philippa rapidly forward.

Gouverneur Morris writes two fascinating love stories in one.

Maurice Maeterlinck, the great Belgian, gives a new vision to the big war.

Penrod, the inimitable, gets into more trouble (Tarkington tells it, of course).

And there are pictures by Christy—Flagg—Fisher, and other men whose work must be great in the true sense because so many people like it.

Yes, it's Cosmopolitan all through, this February number.

A great issue. Take it home tonight.

BELIEVE UNITED STATES WILL DROP NEW HAVEN CASE

By International News Service.

New York, Jan. 10.—Though it has been announced here that the government will again press to trial the cases of the five New York, New Haven & Hartford former officials who failed of acquittal on the charge of conspiracy to restrain trade, the opinion prevailed at the Federal building today that no further action would be taken.

Observers of the recent trial declared that the acquittal of six of the defendants would probably convince Attorney General Gregory that it would be useless to try to secure convictions against the five over whom the jury disagreed, namely, William Rockefeller, Lewis Cass Ledyard, Charles F. Brooker, Edward D. Robbins and Charles M. Pratt.

The men acquitted were D. Newton Barney, Robert W. Taft, James Hemingway, A. Heaton Robertson, Frederick F. Brewster and Henry K. McHarg.

The trial began on October 13, and it is estimated that it has entailed an expense to the government and defendants of over $750,000.

IMPOSSIBLE TO AGREE.

All of the defendants excepting McHarg and William Rockefeller, who is ill, were in court when the jury, which had been out fifty-one hours, reported the verdict. Only a few persons were in the spectators' seats. Four hours before the jury had reported that they could not agree Judge Hunt suggested that they might agree as to some of the defendants even though they could not do so as to all of them. He urged further deliberation.

When the jurors filed in for the last time they carried their hats and coats, the inevitable sign that they had reached an agreement. Feeling was at a tension. Everyone leaned forward eagerly as Foreman Stephen D. Hirschman replied to the usual formal inquiry by Judge Hunt that the jury had agreed upon a verdict.

"As to some?" asked Judge Hunt.

"Yes," was the answer.

"Before receiving the verdict," said Judge Hunt, "let me ask you, Mr. Foreman, whether or not you believe that it is impossible for you to agree upon a verdict as to all of the defendants?"

COURT HEARS VERDICT.

"It is impossible," answered the foreman.

"Is that the view the court shall accept from all of you gentlemen, that you cannot agree as to all the defendants, Mr. Foreman?" Judge Hunt then asked all the jurors.

"It is," came in volume from the jury box.

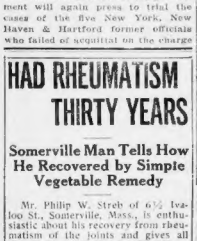
"And am I to consider that to be, gentlemen, a request that you be relieved from further deliberation as to those defendants concerning whom you do not agree?"

"Yes," came the answer from the jurors.

"When the court will receive the verdict of the jury," said Judge Hunt.

"We find the defendants, Barney, Taft, Hemingway, Robertson, Brewster and McHarg are not guilty," said Foreman Hirschman, rising and reading from a slip of paper, "and we fail to agree as to Rockefeller, Brooker, Pratt, Ledyard and Robbins."

A buzz of excitement ran through the courtroom. The acquitted men present fell back in their seats with sighs of relief. They shook hands with each other. Their counsel and friends pressed forward to congratulate them. For the moment the less fortunate defendants were forgotten, excepting by their respective counsel.



HAD RHEUMATISM THIRTY YEARS

Somerville Man Tells How He Recovered by Simple Vegetable Remedy

Mr. Philip W. Streb of 6½ Ivaloo St., Somerville, Mass., is enthusiastic about his recovery from rheumatism of the joints and gives all the credit to Var-ne-sis. He said:

"I have had rheumatism for thirty years and at times it was so bad that I could hardly walk. My hips were stiff and painful; my knees troubled me a great deal, especially if I remained in one position any great length of time. I could hardly get up on account of the stiffness. My hands, arms and shoulders were involved to a considerable extent so that I could hardly move them without great pain.

"Night after night I would have to walk the floor on account of the pain, and for two weeks I slept in a chair, unable to lie in bed. Only the man or woman who has rheumatism can form some idea of the torture I have gone through.

"I think I have tried about everything recommended without relief and had about given up the idea of ever finding anything that would help me until I tried Var-ne-sis. It is a wonderful remedy and I can't say too much in its favor. I am recommending Var-ne-sis to all my friends who suffer from rheumatism."

Var-ne-sis is not a cure-all. It is a rheumatic preparation that gets results when other treatments fail. Var-ne-sis is fast becoming known as the World's remedy for rheumatism. W. A. Varney, discoverer of Var-ne-sis, said:

I am continually producing living evidence to prove that rheumatism of the joints is curable. No rheumatic can afford to ignore this mass of evidence. I say that rheumatism is curable, and my collection of wheelchairs, crutches, canes and letters on display at my Boston office, 140 Boylston St., is open to the public every day except Sunday. The names and addresses are on each article and I court investigation of each case published. I offer $1,000 if these cases are other than genuine or that they have been purchased. 'Teaching to Kill Is Preparedness,' Says Mrs. Mead

Washington, Jan. 10.—Thousands of prominent women and many men crowded the meeting of the Woman's Peace Party and declared enthusiastically for world peace. The meeting was under the auspices of the section for the United States of the International Committee for Permanent Peace. Miss Jane Addams, chairman, presided.

Mrs. Lucia Ames Mead of Boston denounced the word "preparedness" as another form of "teach the boys to kill."

"Before the war the United States was spending 67 per cent. of its Federal income on war, while Germany spent 25 per cent, Japan 45 and England 25 per cent," said Mrs. Mead.

"Submarines and less costly sea defence would give us adequate security in place of the expensive battleship. Nikola Tesla prophesies that by the near future we shall have adequate defence by wireless control of crewless vessels.

"Let us peace workers encourage development of this type of defence for the hypothetic foe, whose ghost is scaring the American public."

SAY MAYOR OPPOSES CONTRACT SYSTEM

The contract systems of the city of Boston were condemned by speakers at a banquet of the Sanitary and Street Cleaning Employes' Union, in O'Connell Hall. Election Commissioner Frank Selberlich, who represented Mayor Curley, said that the contract system should and would be abolished by Mayor Curley, if he could find any way under the laws to do it. If the laws do not allow it, he said that the Mayor would have laws made.

TWO CONFESS TO RIOT PLOT IN OHIO

By International News Service.

East Youngstown, O., Jan. 10.—The backbone of the big strike at the mills of the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Company appeared broken today. Hundreds of strikers returned to work, all apparently in a docile mood, when the big mill whistle sounded the call at 6 o'clock.

Following the decision of the company officials last night not to open the mills all soldiers were withdrawn from them. Brigadier-General Speaks called in the entire Fourth Regiment, which had been stationed at Berlin Centre and Alliance junction, to reinforce the Fifth and Eighth Regiments.

The guardsmen, fully armed and equipped with twenty bundles of ammunition each, were stationed on long trains of cars one mile west of the western end of the plant.

The engineers were at the throttles of the engines and the firemen kept hot steam up, ready to dash into the mills at the first sign of trouble.

TWO CONFIRM PLOT.

The investigation by both Federal and Mahoning County authorities into mob violence at the plant of the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Company, when two persons were killed, many wounded and a million dollars' worth of property destroyed, took a new turn today, when County Detective Kane said that two Austrians in the county jail here have made confessions in which they said they were sent here from New York to start the strike, so as to prevent the manufacture of war munitions for the allies.

The men are Dan Elecs and John Brisky. They gave their address as No. 8 English square, New York.

WORKMEN GO BACK.

The repentant workmen entered their mills over the Wilson avenue bridge, which was partly burned by the mob Friday night, and the Poland avenue bridge, on the other side of the mills.

Squads of soldiers aided the company policemen to guard the entrances of the bridges, and no men who could not be identified by the corporation time keepers were allowed to enter.

Soldiers on sentinel duty in the yards today declared that 500 strike-breakers were rushed into the plant on the spur of the Pennsylvania railroad about 2 o'clock this morning. They said two other trains, each carrying about 200 men, were on the way, and would arrive before noon. Company officials refused to discuss the matter.

Mrs. Bryan Heads Women Pledged to Back Wilson

At a meeting of the Woman's National Democratic League, a special meeting was called to organize the "Wilson Home Guards" for the purpose of making a special appeal for the re-election of the President because of his efforts to keep the United States out of the war.

At the same time the league pledged its support to the President and decided to enter actively into the campaign for his re-election. At the head of the list of directors elected by the league was the name of Mrs. William J. Bryan of Nebraska.

NEW UPROAR IN FORD PEACE MEETING

By HELEN BULLITT LOWRY.
International News Service Correspondent.

The Hague, Jan. 10.—Though the Ford delegates had expected to accomplish much of the preliminary work of permanent organization today they found themselves confronted by an embarrassing tangle when they got down to work.

During Sunday a full-fledged revolution developed. This was led by the Scandinavian delegates who, after informal conferences, met in the evening and made a united and vigorous protest against what they called "the indefiniteness of the proposed peace conference."

Louis P. Lochner, personal representative of Henry Ford, had been invited to attend the meeting and he attempted to explain the purposes of the expedition to the satisfaction of the Scandinavian delegates. A Norwegian delegate interrupted him with cries of "Words! Words! Words!" and after several unsuccessful attempts to continue Lochner left the meeting.

The Scandinavian delegates took no decided action to indorse a demand that no more messages be sent to the European rulers.

BROKER MILLER VICTIM OF GRIPPE

Providence, Jan. 10.—An examination of the books and papers of Albert P. Miller, who is seriously ill in the Providence County Jail, where he was confined, unable to furnish $75,000 bail, was commenced today by George H. Huddy, temporary receiver.

This examination is expected to disclose the extent of the losses, which is claimed, led to his arrest on a specific charge of embezzlement of $37,395. The extent of his alleged defalcations is estimated at $500,000 to $700,000.

Although Miller is reported to be seriously ill with the grippe, he is still in his cell, however, because of the overcrowded conditions in the prison hospital, although the physicians who diagnosed his case advised that he be removed from the jail proper.

Ashmead Bartlett Reviews Mistakes of the British Conduct of War

War Correspondent Declares Kitchener and Churchill Unfit for Burdens Imposed on Them.

By F. ASHMEAD BARTLETT.

Official eye-witness observer for the British Press Bureau at the Dardanelles and war correspondent of the International News Service.

In his Carnegie Hall lecture in New York, supplemented by statements to the International News Service, Mr. Bartlett said:

"We will ruin them economically. I know we cannot starve them out. The Germans can put up with much discomfort. It is the result of the hardy manner in which they were brought up.

"Now, you may ask why, at the start of the war, we failed to adopt conscription. As you know, conscription runs against the blood of every free Anglo-Saxon. He does not fear conscription; it is the word to which he objects, more than the system.

"It has always been said that one volunteer is worth six or seven conscripts. That I do not think is quite true. As a matter of fact, a man fights as well if he is a conscript as if he were a volunteer if he has his country at heart when he is fighting.

DREAD OF A WORD.

"But we hate the horror of the word. At the start of the war conscription would have been useless to us. We would have had so many men that we would not have known what to do with them. We would have had more than we had rifles to supply them with.

"But now we are really in a very difficult position. It is all because of the position we took at the start, when we could not make use of all the men at the beginning of the war we put them to work at some other service. We allowed them to manufacture munitions. We told them they were doing as much for their country as the men at the front, and that they were actually engaged in war.

"That was one of the faults of our system. What we should have done was to conscript at once. We should have done as the Germans did. Because we failed to do this we have thousands of unconscripted men now refusing to go to war.

"And there is an excuse for this. Many of these men do not read the papers. They do not know what is going on. When they are asked to join the army they say, 'we were told at the start of the war we were doing something very necessary. We are at work just as much as the men in the trenches.'

"That is one of the things that has arisen from loose conscription.

WORKING CLASS MISLED.

"The prosperity of the working classes never was better. It is true the cost of living is 30 per cent. higher than before the war, but the wages of the better class of mechanics has risen 300 per cent. Therefore, you see, we have another irresistible temptation to work instead of fight.

"It is necessary at the present time to absolutely reorganize our nation. We have got to conscript everything. We will have to do as the Germans are doing—conscript all the men, and when we need them, send them to the front. We will have to conscript the food supply and fix the prices.

"I believe a stubborn fight will be made against conscription. This in face of the reports I see in the papers today that the conscription bill passed on a first reading by a vote of 450 to 105.

"Another strain on the country has been the extravagance of our expenditures. We are conducting our campaign in a most extravagant manner. Our expenditures are far greater than those of Germany or any of the other nations in the war.

GERMANY NOT TO BE STARVED.

"There are some people in England who say we cannot stand it. I think myself we are making a great mistake in spending our money so freely.

"Where do we stand today in the campaigns which are going on? At the outset of the war it was essential to Germany that she crush all her foes with as much haste as possible. It was her plan to crush France and any army we might send against her. It was then her plan to move her army rapidly across the country and attack Russia, whose mobilization is slow.

"France concentrates her troops in Lorraine. She did not think Germany would violate the neutrality of Belgium in the manner she did. Germany crossed through Belgium into France, and she was not stopped until General Joffre defeated them at the battle of the Marne.

"But I must give credit to the marvellous German army. It is still conducting successful fights on both fronts. My only regret is they are not fighting for a better cause. But by their violation of all rules of humanity, the Germans have earned the most violent hatred of the British people.

"If France were to sign a separate peace tomorrow (I know she won't) and if Russia were to sign a separate peace tomorrow, the people of England would keep up the struggle against the Germans and in exactly the same manner we kept up the struggle against the great Napoleon. We are a slow-thinking people, not easily aroused, but when we become aroused we are a determined nation. We will never give up the battle against Germany.

COSTLY MISTAKES.

"The general staff went to the field of battle and left no one behind to take their place. There was no one in the War Office but some clerks. At this crisis the government called in Lord Kitchener and he was made Secretary of State for War.

"But that was a political office. Lord Kitchener was not a politician. He could map a plan of battle with much more ease and attend the Cabinet meetings he had to attend. Though no party politician, he got mixed up in party politics.

"Lord Kitchener was placed in the wrong position. He was in a Cabinet where every Cabinet member was conducting a campaign according to his own fancy.

"Winston Churchill's one thought was to leave a record. He would have left a great record if he had left matters in the hands of his competent commanders, but he went around saying, 'we must finish this war. I must leave a record as the greatest soldier of the war.'

> "ENGLAND WILL NEVER GIVE UP."

CHURCHILL BLUNDER.

"He was responsible for the most unfortunate Dardanelles expedition. His idea was to 'go there and blow the Turk to pieces.' And he proceeded to attack the Dardanelles with the fleet alone. That was a very serious error. Of course, we easily destroyed the outer forts, but our real difficulty started when we tried to force the Narrows.

"It was on March 17 we began the attack. But we failed in everything. We failed to locate the Turks batteries; we failed to do any real injury to them. We lost five capital ships in the attempt. And, unfortunately for us, we warned the Turk we were coming.

"He was well prepared for us when we did come.

"When we sent our troops there we made another blunder. In the first instance we attempted the landing at too many places, with too many troops. As soon as our brave troops accomplished their landings, the situation changed. We were no longer the attacking forces. We immediately became hard pressed.

"The stories of the first landings were brilliantly written about by our commanding officers. They told of the valor of the British troops and the progress they are making. The stories aroused great enthusiasm in England among the people, who had no knowledge of the Turk.

"We were asked to send new divisions there and we sent them. But they did not amount to new divisions. There had been so many men lost, and the losses were continually taking place that the new arrivals hardly filled up the gaps. The strength of the forces was never added to.

"Then the government learned the strength of the Turk. They learned how well he was fortified, and his excellent training at the hands of the Germans.

"I have read what the general on the spot has to say about the failure of the expedition to succeed. He maintains that the final attack would have succeeded if 50,000 more men had been sent to him.

"That is absolutely nonsense, because he states that the number of the Turks is about 110,000 men. He says that our forces were about 95,000. He then asks for 50,000 more men, which would have increased his forces to 145,000. As anybody knows, who has had any experience at all, about military affairs, to attack a well-defended position you have got to have considerable artillery and a superiority of infantry of five or six to one. I think the government came to a wise decision when it withdrew from Gallipoli.

"There is one thing about the war wherein every nation is disappointed. Every nation taking part is disappointed it has not achieved one great military victory. The German trenches would not be where they are if Germany had not overthrown every existing law of humanity, when it violated Belgium's neutrality.

"But now they have concentrated their trenches. While we were wondering what to do, they were building up a defence of barbed wires that will prove an obstacle hard to overcome. We are up against a tremendous proposition if we expect to break through the German lines. It is a very serious question which cannot be answered lightly.

"We made a valiant effort to break through at Loos, but we failed. We will probably make our next efforts in the Spring and Summer.

"One of our greatest faults was in not attacking the Germans simultaneously. It always happened that when we were attacking the Russians were retreating. We could not bring our attacks at the same time. But, of course, we were handicapped greatly in trying to attack the Germans. Whenever we tried to reach them we had to go around a circle.

"The Germans could come from any point along the diameter. Another great advantage to Germany was the excellent railroad lines. It was an easy matter for them to transport an entire army corps from one point to another within two or three days. Another of our errors is trying to defeat the Germans by attacking the Turks and Bulgarians. That is the wrong idea. We are only wasting our time and our energy in such an endeavor. We were playing the German game when we went to the Dardanelles and threw away 200,000 men in a perfectly useless effort. But the Salonika expedition comes in an entirely different category.

"That has not been a fruitless expedition. It is true we have apparently not accomplished much, but it cannot be compared to the Dardanelles expedition.

TOO LATE IN SERBIA.

"When Serbia was attacked we should have had men in Macedonia, but again we were thinking behind our opponents. But we did finally send forces there. We sent them there to see what we could do to assist the Serbians, and if possible save the remnants of their army. Having accomplished our purpose, we went back to Salonica.

"We are absolutely safe at Salonica. It has been strongly fortified, and it is a place where we can concentrate our fleet. At all times we have an open gate into the Balkan states.

"There is no doubt in my mind that Rumania and Greece will throw their lot with us. They will be with us before long. At least they will not cast their lot with the central empires.

"None of the Balkan states has any use for the central empires, but they are all in the war to see what they can get out of the general mixup.

EGYPT SAFE.

"Egypt? Much nonsense is being printed about Egypt in the German press. Much is being said about large German expeditions being headed for Egypt. The Germans have no intention of sending any troops there. They are too well versed in the art of war to attempt such a thing. As for the Turks attacking Egypt, that is only a bluff. Why, I can assure you the thing we would most welcome would be an advance against Egypt. Egypt can only be attacked after long marches across the deserts. The Germans would not attempt such a thing.

"We hold all the winning cards, no matter what the Germans say. If we do not achieve a decision through victory in the field, we will win through the exertion of economic pressure. It will be easy for us to defeat Germany that way.

"All we have to do is to go back to our normal life. We can recall our men from the fields and send them back to their labors at home and take up our commercial activities where we left them when the war started.

"The Germans cannot do such a thing. They have two lines to hold. And the seas are closed to them.

"Therefore, it is absolutely clear to me that we will win, if we don't exhaust our stamina by trying for a knockout. We will win on points.

BLOW TO DREADNOUGHTS.

"My friends, the one bright spot of the great war is the manner war is killing itself. After what has been seen of this great war, no nation will ever attempt to assume the offensive again.

"Another thing the war has shown, is how a navy can be made useless. Of the great navies possessed by all the countries involved in the struggle, not a single dreadnaught can safely appear upon the high seas unless it is accompanied by a horde of torpedo boats. The advancement of the submarine has destroyed the usefulness of the dreadnaught.

"Monitors are now being built to take the places of fleets. They are of light draught, cost very little, and are hard to destroy. Their bodies are built in such a manner as to make them practically safe from torpedo attack. Monitors have been sent to the Dardanelles to take the place of the fleet there.

"I don't believe any nation is likely to waste its time building these immense dreadnoughts, which have absolutely proved themselves so futile in the present war.

"Probably rather than the settlement of the present war, the world would like nothing better than to see a revolution in Germany, which would result in the overthrow of the Hohenzollern dynasty. It would be most welcome in Germany herself.

"The hatred of the Saxons for the Prussians is vividly told in stories about comradeship of the soldiers, which come from the trenches. It is said of the Saxons, when they are holding the trenches against the British, they say 'Don't shoot us and we won't shoot you. The Prussians relieve us in the trenches tonight and you can fire as much as you like.'

"You will probably be interested in England's attitude toward the United States. Intense amazement was felt in England when America did not at once come into the struggle to avenge the 125 Americans who perished on the Lusitania.

"But when there came sinkings of other vessels, our attitude changed and we looked upon you as though you were displaying benevolent neutrality. A great many of the people of Great Britain were satisfied with the stand you took, because if you entered the war with us our supply of munitions would be cut off. We required that as much as we did your assistance.

"But now I think the attitude of England is largely changed. There are a great many people who think it is to our advantage if you stay out of the war. On the other hand, a still larger section of the people feel that if civilization is to be saved in the future, and if humanity is to be restored to where it was, it is absolutely essential for you to come and fight side by side with us."

Mass Meeting to Demand Better Street Car Service for Roxbury People

Call for More Car Stops in Vicinity of Huntington Avenue and Calumet Street.

Restoration of street car stops in the vicinity of Huntington avenue and Calumet street, Roxbury and better street car service will be asked of officials of the Boston Elevated Railway by residents of that section at a public mass meeting to be held at the assembly hall of the Martin School, Huntington avenue and Worthington street, Roxbury, next Friday evening, January 14, at 8 o'clock.

Aroused by the changes the railroad has made in the Parker Hill district, more than 300 citizens have petitioned that these stops be returned.

The movement for the indignation meeting was headed by Daniel Thompson, president of the Roxbury Improvement Society and a member of the United Improvement Association. Mr. Thompson will open the meeting and introduce Attorney Francis M. Costello, who will preside.

That the public has been entirely disregarded in this step by the Elevated is the claim of practically every citizen in the community.

PROMINENT CITIZENS TO SPEAK.

Leading citizens will address the meeting and tell the L officials where they made this mistake in removing the stops originally located at Huntington avenue and Calumet street and at Walt street and Huntington avenue.

In their place a stop has been placed at Fenwood road at a great inconvenience to residents of Parker Hill and patients and visitors at the many hospitals in the vicinity.

The Elevated authorities have said that they are eliminating as many stops as possible over their system, and in this particular instance, Vice-President Brush has said that the stops for the district are undue in number, more especially with trailer car operation, which, he says, will occur in the early part of this year.

Michael O'Brien, proprietor of the O'Brien Drug Company, No. 735 Huntington avenue, says:

"It is quite apparent that the Elevated does not consider the public. If stops are to be removed on their system, why not select a point where there is little traffic instead of singling out a station which is, it is safe to say, the busiest on Huntington avenue, south of Massachusetts avenue.

"SOME STOP DANGEROUS ONE.

"Moreover, the stop at Calumet street has been located there ever since horse cars ran through to Brookline more than twenty-five years ago. It has been argued by the Elevated that the inward stop at Calumet street was not the safe place, but I have yet to know of any accident within many years.

"Abandoning this particular stop, to my belief, is contrary to the 'good railroading' the L speaks about. That there will be a serious accident if the new stop continues is my opinion.

"Many times during the day groups of cars follow. Practically every car stops at this post and, of course, with the first car stopping there the second and third cars follow behind and block Fenwood road.

"I think if the Street Commissioners or the Elevated authorities saw this they would note the danger of having this stop and would make a change. The same is true of the inward stop with the exception that instead of cars stopping before passing the road, many stop beyond and thereby block the street and crossovers.

"As it was when the stop was at Calumet street, all cars stopped before crossing. This accommodated the public and I honestly believe it was more in accordance with 'good railroading.'

MANY ARE INCONVENIENCED.

"Since these stops have been discontinued, many residents of Ward 19 have been greatly discommoded, more particularly the people who live on Parker Hill. In arriving at the present stop they are obliged to walk several hundred feet further than the old stop or else walk about 400 feet more to the stop at the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital."

Harry Dooley of Francis street said:

"The cause is loss of passengers coming up of Boston by the way of the subway or the Elevated. Some L officials have the audacity, however, to come and tell us that we are not inconvenienced and that the transfer which was made was for the greatest good to the greatest number.

"Coming from Dudley street, citizens living on Francis street have to leave the car at Tremont and Huntington avenues, walk through slush and mud across the avenue for 150 feet and then cross to where the stop was originally located in front of No. 733 Huntington avenue, a distance of more than 300 feet, or they are walking 500 feet further than before.

"The same is true coming from the subway with the exception that you walk about 200 feet. I have not yet shown a good argument yet by the Elevated, and I do think that if any consideration were given the matter the officials would return what rightfully belongs to the more than a thousand people who go to and from this section daily."

WANT MORE CARS ALSO.

Residents say that both stops be replaced at the earliest possible moment. Petitions have been filed with the Elevated, and Edward Dana, superintendent of traffic, has conferred with citizens interested. The reply has now come, however, that it is impossible to make any other arrangements.

Inadequate car service is also given much discussion and will be dwelt upon at the meeting. Some citizens have called the subway line "the once in a while line," and refer to the increase in the population of more than 500 per cent in the past few years, and also to the establishment in that section during the same period of the Robert Brigham, Peter Bent Brigham, Children's Infants' and Collin P. Huntington Hospitals, Art Museum, Wentworth Institute, and they claim the number of cars has proportionately decreased.

The so-called "limousine" — as some term them, or "stifling cars" as others call them—are also coming in for an attack. These old cars which the L has made into prepayment cars and is operating from Allston and Cypress street.

BLAMES "L" FOR LACK OF INTEREST.

The Elevated authorities are not trying to help their patrons. I favor the return of the original stop at Calumet street. At Roxbury Crossing the Elevated put business out of existence. I can't see why they do it. Is there any advantage to the railroad in having the stop at Fenwood road? Their patrons are obliged to walk a long distance from Calumet hill to this new stop. Poor judgment is used. It is not a suitable place, for the old stop at Calumet street has been the centre of the district for a score of years.—From statement of Henry Hunt, a Roxbury merchant.

CALLS CONDITIONS DEPLORABLE.

Roger P. Scannell, Jr., of No. 700 Huntington avenue, Roxbury, former president of the Roxbury Improvement Society said:

"The growth of our district in Ward 19 warrants better car service. The conditions are deplorable.

"Why ten years ago we had cars operated by the L down to the subway from Lake street on fifteen-minute time. We also had Reservoir cars on the same time and an Oak square line and Allston line which ran on seven and eight-minute time.

"We have not got anything like that now. The Lake street, Reservoir and Oak square lines have been discontinued, and in their place what have we got? We have an Allston car four times an hour when they are scheduled—which they never are—and we have a line from Cypress street and Jamaica Plain.

"We had the Jamaica Plain line with the others ten years ago. The service is exceptionally poor. I have been delayed from ten to fifteen minutes waiting for a car in the subway, and then they come in 'streams.'

"Then you have to hang-on if you are in haste to arrive at your destination. Take the case of the Dudley street line. I can not see why the stops at Calumet street and Walk were removed. There has not been any sound reason given. I favor the return of those stops."

SAYS PATRONS NOT CONSIDERED.

"The Elevated authorities are not trying to help their patrons," stated Henry Hunt, a business man at Brigham circle.

"I favor the return of the original stop at Calumet street. At Roxbury Crossing the Elevated put business out of existence. I can't see why they do it. Is there any advantage to the railroad in having the stop at Fenwood road?

"Their patrons are obliged to walk a long distance from Calumet hill to this new stop. Poor judgment is used. It is not a suitable place, for the old stop at Calumet street has been the centre of the district for a score of years.

"With prepayment cars and trailer attached, patrons will be obliged to walk probably from Walt street to Francis street or Calumet street—an extra walk—when these trailers are added—of one hundred feet from where the pole is located."

Among the petitioners for restoring the stops are Thomas McCourt, James F. Troy, John J. Lynch, Peter Goodrich, J. H. Bailey, J. J. Moylan, Andrew J. O'Connor, Dennis M. McCarthy, E. Wykes, James McCarty, A. Long, Joseph A. King, Frank Laroche, Abraham Axelson, Timothy Sullivan, Austin Kelly, John J. Flynn, John H. Healey, Charles McManus, George E. Rogers, P. Roche, O. F. Sweeney, E. C. Fuller, J. R. Hession, Dennis J. Bailey, John Grant, Joseph Morrissey, John Murphy, Thomas H. Ryder, M. H. Kelley, M. Sullivan, H. O'Connell, John J. Normile, John J. Dorrington, James Cotton, Edward E. Peterson, Mortimer Shea, R. F. Cronin, J. J. Sheehan, William Haggerty, A. W. McLaughlin, William Murray, E. D. Williams, John Peters, John Lyons, Jr., and several hundred others.

EAST BOSTON WOMAN PROTESTS.

Relative to conditions at Jeffries Point, East Boston, a woman patron of that district writes:

I hope as long as you are writing up the Elevated cars you will find out how they run at Jeffries Point. It is one of the shortest hauls in the whole service, and the service is awful; they call it the "Jay Line Route," because one can never tell when he will arrive at his destination. The cars run up Webster street and down Sumner, and it takes but a short time for the car to run around the Point; yet the car stops up there twenty to thirty minutes.

It is quicker to walk to Maverick square and take the car there. This is true for people living on Cottage, Webster and Sumner streets.

When the Jeffries Point cars do come, they are bunched together, several to a block, often with not more than twelve inches between.

Now they are talking of discontinuing the service because of poor patronage, while we who would like to be patrons walk to Maverick square and pay an extra fare to go to Atlantic avenue.

I think the way we are treated is a crying shame. When citizens in this section complain they do not seem to make any difference what they want.

The walk at Dunreath street to Boston is about half an hour for the Jeffries Point car, and then it is packed with twice as many passengers as the cars were intended to carry.

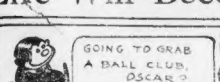
Life Will Become Monotonous to Some, Now There Is No Federal League to Battle wit



BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS

NO RUSH FOR FED STARS

O. B. Biding Time Patronizing Sinclair's Bargain Counter. Gaffney Due Tomorrow.

By HERMAN NICKERSON.

WHEN managers of clubs in Organized Baseball have conferred with their presidents during the past week, there hasn't been a wild scramble to secure players in the Federal League ranks. This is likely to mean conservatism in point of selection, or it may indicate the desire to stay away from all those who have played ball for the league now at peace with the world of baseball.

Any way one views the situation, this fact remains, that the "stars" of the "third big league" have not been grabbed up by club owners as they were expected to be, which is an indication that those who are to conduct the affairs of Organized Baseball, really figure that the clubs can continue without any great amount of "strengthening" so far as this kind of material is concerned.

Talk of a big season for both the American and National Leagues is heard, being based upon good confidence. With all this talk of the Federal League removed, the atmosphere in the baseball world certainly clears. Fans who had grown up in the game, following the fortunes of the clubs in the National League, were slow to fall for the American League.

BASEBALL'S PUT MIGHTMENT.

It took some years before the rabid partisans of the game would even go to see an American League game. You can know the real importance of even today is not settled; what league plays the fastest baseball?

Well, when fans couldn't determine between the American and National League, each followed suit, having his facts to prove his statement. It was small wonder that general interest in baseball itself fell when the wild stories of great wealth, huge salaries and general desire to "get rich quick" from organized baseball, were printed each morning.

When the clubs issue their lists of men who will go South for Spring training, the public will know more baseball will know more about the situation than they do now. It is the season between the baseball writers, so to speak, in the national pastime.

The Red Sox look to be in a position to stand pretty close to the top of the team. Manager Carrigan is about the first to get out on edge with a statement of his intention to have a safe and sane training trip.

SOX MAKE LATE START.

The start will be made three weeks later than usual. The first men, pitchers and catchers, will go to Hot Springs March 12, the others getting there March 19. With the opening of the season April 15 only a little more, it gives the World's Champions about a month for workouts for only a small portion of the squad. That's good dope and follows along the lines discussed in this column some weeks ago.

Just what the Braves will do is yet to be announced. Manager Stallings was very fond of Macon, Ga., as a training camp. He visited the Southern city with his Highlanders and again with his Buffalo club, and still later put in two Spring workouts there with the Braves, finishing them from last to fifth place in 1915, and to the big tune of 20 games. Macon is a convenient spot for George.

His plantation is only an easy auto spin away from the city and the boys all enjoyed those visits to the plantation which usually spending Saturday afternoon and evening and all day Sunday at his big house, with plenty of sport, salted down with fine and good old-fashioned Southern food to eat.

I understand that the Boston National League baseball Company has signed a new contract to use Atlanta for a period of five years as a training camp. The Board of Trade has built a ball park for the team and the club's ground tender has placed the field in shape for the workouts, presumably a club will carry out the contract. I haven't heard what Manager Stallings had to say on this subject, nor am I sure he was consulted.

SPRING TRAINING.

Spring training is largely a joke any way you look at it. The club owners figure the amount of publicity they get from the games pays for the expended. It probably does, still the Carrigan idea of a little real workout, with a few exhibition games to be played moving North, for the opening looks to be the sensible thing after all.

The time between the present day and the first of March is limited for the new owners to get acquainted with the mass of detail attendant upon the sending of transportation to ball players, with their instructions, the arrangements for the railroad Pullmans, etc., for the local party and the other matters that come with the starting of a season.

New names, new ideas, new methods may appear in the change of ownership of the Braves, all of which will be followed with interest.

Boston fans admire Braves' Field; they realize that Manager Stallings has a fine club and they look for added enthusiasm in direction to come from President F. P. Haughton. If the football leader can inspire as much confidence in his paid players as he has found in the patriotism of college boys, he and Boss Stallings will certainly produce "some ball club."

WEST VIRGINIA U. DATES

Small Holders in the Braves Sell Out

By HERMAN NICKERSON.

The postponed annual meeting of the Boston National League Baseball Company will not be held tomorrow. The call for this meeting at which the reorganization will be perfected has not been issued. There is a possibility that it will occur the latter part of this week, but there is no disposition to rush matters.

As it stands today President James E. Gaffney is still in office, and Director H. H. Davis is also a director. Their resignations are at hand, but have not been acted upon. The resignations of Vice-President C. M. Goodnow and Director Fred Weedeck have arrived.

Fred R. Killian, Mr. Gaffney's right-hand man in his business, also a director in the Boston Club, will be in town tomorrow with the papers necessary in the transfer of the club. There is no other outstanding in the club. All the small shareholders have disposed of their holdings, so the club when it passed into the hands of the new owners, went with all interest purchased making its small holders a new deal all the way through.

Percy D. Haughton was not at the offices of the Braves today.

LOOK FOR G. T. ADEE TO BE NAMED TODAY

New York, Jan. 10.—It is confidently expected that George T. Adee, president of the Westchester C. C. and former Yale athlete, will be named to head the ticket which the nominating committee of the United States National Lawn Tennis Association will present at next month's annual meeting, and that formal announcement of his election will be made at that time. Dwight F. Davis of Nebraska is slated to succeed A. L. Hoffline as vice-president.

CHICAGO TOURNEY FOR THE POOL TITLE

Chicago, Jan. 10.—Arrangements for a tournament to establish a new championship pocket billiard title crown are in progress. Among the experts named as probable entrants are Benny Allen of Kansas City, Mo., the present champion, Edward F. Hoppe of Hightstown, N. J.; George Clark of Brooklyn, Louis Kreuter of New York, James Naturo of Denver, Ralph Greenleaf of Monmouth, Ill., H. Butler of Everett, Wash., Clement Blankenship of Detroit and John Dayton of St. Louis.

SIX GRIDIRON GOES FOR HARVARD, 1920

Harvard 1920 will not meet Worcester Academy on the gridiron next Fall. While the freshman eleven may take on six teams, one more than last Fall, its opponents will be chosen to make a more evenly-balanced schedule than the past two years.

University School of Cleveland is looking for its first game in the East. Exeter and Andover, of course, will get games, with the closing date with Yale at New Haven November 15.

COSTLY TROTTER HURT.

Danville, Jan. 10.—Hiryma, J. Frank-lin Duke's Ellen trotter, a mare by Baden, 2.07¼, recently sold to a London sportsman for $20,000, was seriously injured in an automobile collision here this morning. The machine was driven by Dr. Edward H. Niles, and Ellen Hiryma will never be able to race again.

HIGGINS IN BIG EVENT.

Joe Higgins, Holy Cross' crack runner, has entered the annual Brooklyn College games, which will be held next Saturday. He will start from scratch in the 1-mile handicap.

CLAIMS ROLLER RECORD.

Chicago, Jan. 8.—A world's record for roller skating on cement ice Anton Edlington of Chicago, who Saturday night skated fifteen miles in 47:16 2-5, in a sanctioned race. The former record was 48:04 2-5, made five years ago.

THE RABBIT'S COLUMN

HORTSTOP OF THE BRAVES

Well, you fans all know we have a new boss, a new boss father. If they prove as good as those who have sold out, there will be no any kick coming from either players or public.

* * *

They certainly pulled something on the quiet, all right. That comes from having had training in the political world.

* * *

I once listened to a wise old gentleman give a youngster advice upon some subject, I can't remember just what the subject was but this much I do recall: "Never tell a man what you are going to do until you have done it," said the old fellow.

* * *

That appears to be James E. Gaffney's method in baseball. He was very strong against the Federals, that is, talked that way. Then Mr. Gaffney, the public knows, is to their booster. He comes out strong for Boston in the open, and then New York. Still, if any man has a right to change his mind and sell what he possesses, the price. I was thinking how men who follow baseball for the newspapers must feel, doing "flip flops" never a moment in baseball when the magnates are not mysterious. The word should be placed as the middle name of every club president.

* * *

For once the Boston papers got the news of the sale in advance of the New York papers. This is worthy of statement, for with Mr. Gaffney in New York the greater part of his time it was only natural that things dropped first in the metropolis. The clever newsgatherers there and stories built upon them.

* * *

With Boston men directing and controlling the clubs affairs it is presumed that the Boston papers will get the news when it is news.

* * *

For some unknown reason the morning papers appeared to get the big thing in the distribution of sporting items connected with baseball clubs. But the AMERICAN certainly pulled a beat on the sale of the Braves Friday, having the story on the street even an hour ahead of the other afternoon papers. This was the result of information imparted, and knowledge possessed, mechanical equipment equal to any occasion, and enterprise in distribution of news when it is news that should go to the people with it. It was a case of "morning papers may copy."

* * *

The fact that Boston papers got the news of a Boston transaction ahead of New York was only by accident, I am told. It seems that Messrs Wise and Haughton walked into Mr. Gaffney's office in New York last week when Mr. Gaffney was talking with the sporting editor of one of the big papers, who picked up Gaffney's Boston club news as well as football.

* * *

There wasn't a chance that the newspaper man would fail to recognize Percy Haughton, in fact, he started an interview right away to discover why the Harvard football leader was a visitor. Mr. Gaffney very skilfully pulled the wool over the eye by talking best of the other things of a financial nature with Mr. Wise, there being many gentlemen present. Mr. Haughton to attend a meeting of a concern Mr. Gaffney is interested in. It worked much to the delight of the former owner of the Braves, who evidently desired the maximum of publicity in news concerning the Boston club to come out in Boston.

'RABBIT' WILL TALK AT BROCKTON A. A.

Brockton, Jan. 10.—"Rabbit" Maranville, shortstop of the Braves, will be the principal speaker at the annual banquet for the benefit of the Brockton High A. A. which will be held in Assembly Hall February 11. Maranville began his professional career as a member of the New Bedford (New England League) club.

An entertainment will be furnished by the Dramatic and Musical clubs and gymnasium class. Miss Doris Tribble, reader, will assist.

OMAHA BUYS IRELAN.

Omaha, Neb., Jan. 10.—The Omaha Western League Club announces the purchase of Second Baseman Ireland from Phillies. Ireland played with Montreal in 1915.

Coach Winsor to Make Several Changes

By JOHN W. MORAN, JR.

When the Harvard and Cornell seven lines up at the Arena tomorrow night local hockey followers are almost certain to see several new men playing at the end positions of the Crimson hockey team. The showing of the Harvard forwards, and especially the wing men, in the game last night was anything but satisfactory to Coach Winsor or Captain Huntington.

Though Cornell has had but little opportunity to practice since the holidays they are nevertheless dangerous opponents for the Crimson. Coach Hunter has had them on the ice at Lake Cayuga during the past week and feels confident that they are in condition to give Harvard a good run. Cornell hasn't won a hockey game from Harvard in several years, in fact, not since the Ithaca citizens won the intercollegiate championship five years ago.

Cornell is expected in Boston early tomorrow morning, and if the opportunity offers they will go through a practice session at the Arena for a practice session between twelve and one o'clock. Winsor probably decide to parade the squad tonight and again he may not. It may be that he can, has become possessed of the fact that his players have gone stale.

In all events Harvard will in all probability regard tomorrow night's clash more in the nature of a workout for the Saturday night game with Princeton. That game should rank as one of the most important on the season's schedule. Princeton has been working for several weeks, and during the Christmas holidays played a three-game series with Yale at Pittsburgh.

In addition to that they have been at St. Paul's School, Concord, N. H., where they were able to get in some good practice. Their finish is practically the same as that presented last year, with the Hampden hockeyists leading the attack, assisted by Captain Peacock, who has proved up to the form he displayed in 1915. He will not arrive in Boston until Saturday morning.

HOCKEY NOTES.

Recently several hockey fans have asked just when Hobey Baker and the St. Nicholas Rinkers will make his first appearance in Boston. For their benefit it is here announced that the St. Nicks will be in Boston on Saturday night, January 22.

Wednesday night's B. A. A.-Harvard clash should be the best thus far this season. Those who go here at the Arena are inclined to scoff at the Harvard Club seven are today included to be skeptical. Hobey Winsor may be able to make good his assertion that he will have a team capable of beating the B. A. A. seven.

* * *

Several good schoolboy games are carded for this week both at the Arena and in the open air.

SCHOOL SEVENS IN CONTEST AT ARENA

Melrose High and Somge Tech clash in their Interscholastic Hockey League game of the Arena this afternoon. Captain Newell, defense will be on absentee, as he lost his collarbone broken in last Monday's game with Medford. Price, Arlington and Somerville line up.

The Middlesex School seven opens its season's schedule with a game with Boston Latin or Belmont's Pond, North Concord.

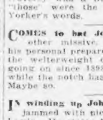
CRONIN STEPS OUT AS B. L. S. SKIPPER

Captain Cronin of the Boston Latin School hockey seven has resigned his position and Captain Sweetland of High or Jefferson will be elected his successor. Cronin announced that he will leave hockey alone and go in for track work.

SWEETLAND QUITS W. & J.

"Bucky" Sweetland, Everett High's old star athlete, has quit his half associated college career at Washington and Jefferson and gone into business.

BOXING BRIEFS and GOSSIP



MIKE GLOVER'S decisive victory over "Billy" Kramer, the Middle West's new sensation among the welterweights, on Milwaukee pleased the champion's many admirers greatly.

* * *

GLOVER got over the kayo in the tenth and final round after making Kramer look foolish during the entire life of the skit.

* * *

WE admit to "A. C. Reader" that Jimmie Johnston's recent letter in reference to the Glover-Lewis controversy was a little twisted. But "those" were the abbreviated New Yorker's words.

* * *

COMES to bat Johnston with an- other missive. In it he sends his personal prepared list of the way the welterweight doings have been going on since 1898 and that all the while the notch has been 142 pounds.

* * *

JIMMY Cornell is expected in Boston early tomorrow morning, and if the opportunity offers he will parade at the Arena for a practice session between twelve and one o'clock. Winsor may decide to parade the squad tonight and again he may not. It may be that he can, has become possessed of the fact that his players have gone stale.

* * *

IN winding up Johnston has a P. S. jammed with nice lingo about Ted Lewis. He states that his charge is not only the welterweight champion, but also the greatest fighter in the world.

* * *

DANNY MORGAN was heard from in the ring small. After blowing the Levinski-Cowler scrap—he is managing the Battler—he has this to say about another member of his string: "Jack Britton, the classiest lightweight in the world, is ready to take Ted Lewis and give him another boxing lesson, the same as he did a few months ago in New York.

* * *

"BRITTON was not right when he last boxed Lewis in Boston. Jack had been sick and Lewis outpointed him when he was not of condition. Glover was whipped by Britton three times and Glover whipped Lewis.

* * *

"THAT only shows that Jack was not himself when a second-class welterweight like Lewis could outpoint him. Britton is in great shape now and is confident he can knock out Jimmie Johnston's phony champion."

* * *

AL SHUBERT, the New Bedford lightweight, who is dividing honors with Mike Glover on being New England's best appearing all-round ring member this Winter, has been signed to meet Howard McRae of Cambridge at Friday night's show of the Business Men's A. A.

Belmont Spring Country Club May Lose

On Friday night of this week the United States Golf Association holds its annual meeting at Chicago and at that time the three contests on which the various national championships will be played will be decided upon. From Massachusetts one bid for a little event has gone but indications are that the bid will not receive serious consideration.

The Belmont Spring Country Club will send James E. Keilan to the meeting with instructions to do everything in his power to secure the women's championship for the course. Three other courses, New Haven and Greenwich in Connecticut and Baltusrol on New Jersey, have submitted bids for the same event.

The Boston district is apt to lose because of the feeling of apathy which swept through the ranks of local women golfers last year at the time of the national championship tourney. The Boston women announced that they would not go to Chicago to play last year, because of the great distance from home, and when the time came for play in the event there was but one Boston woman starter. Consequently the district can hardly be expected to receive much consideration.

For the amateur championship three clubs have been bids, the Merion Cricket Club, near Philadelphia, the Nassau Country Club and the Piping Rock Club on Long Island, New York. Of the three Merion is the possessor of two full eighteen-hole courses, one measuring 6,945 yards and the other 6,420 yards. The shorter course is the more difficult and will be used in event of Merion winning the fight. Both Nassau and Piping Rock are sporty courses, the latter, designed by Charles B. MacDonald, being especially so.

For the open championship three Western and one Eastern clubs have made bids. Minikahda of Minneapolis, Country Club of Detroit and the Kent Country Club of Grand Rapids are the Western entrants. The Englewood Country Club of Englewood, N. J., is the other starter. Indications are that some one of the three Western clubs will get the event, with Minneapolis favored.

DE ORO COMING TO DEFEND HIS TITLE

Lovers of three-cushion billiards receive their banner treat of the season this week. Champion Alfredo De Oro, the noted Cuban cueist, the king of pool for practically a generation and now the wizard of the angle game, is to defend his title at Convention Hall against Lloyd Jevne, the brilliant Western player. The match, over the long route of 150 points, will run three nights, beginning Wednesday night.

The contest is for a purse of $500 hung up by Promoter Miah Murray, the jeweled championship trophy donated by the Brunswick-Blake-Collender Company and a side bet of $250.

Harvard Hopeful Haughton Will Be Back in the Fall

SOME decision as to whether Percy D. Haughton will coach the Harvard football eleven next Fall, in light of accepting the presidency of the Braves, may be known tonight following a meeting of the athletic committee.

Manager Norman Burbidge of the Crimson team is inclined to believe that Haughton's baseball duties will not deter him from standing up Harvard's gridironists and developing his customary winners.

Included in the business to be disposed of at tonight's meeting will be the approval of the varsity and freshman baseball schedules and the probable announcement of the official fencing, wrestling and second hockey team dates.

JAPAN COURT KING DEFEATS GRIFFIN

Manila, Jan. 10.—Clarence J. Griffin of California, who, with William M. Johnston, holds the American lawn tennis championship in the doubles, was defeated Saturday by Kumagae, champion of Japan, in the final match for the Far Eastern championship.

JONES PICKS PALESTINE.

St. Louis, Jan. 10.—Tentative plans have been made by Manager Jones of the Browns to pitch the training camp at Palestine, Texas, March 5, as the starting date.

B. A. A. Picking an All-Star Boxing Team

The inter-city sparring tournament under the auspices of the B. A. A., which takes place in Mechanics Building next Monday night, is creating a lot of interest among followers of amateur boxing. Five boys from Brooklyn and five boys from New York will meet ten Boston boys. An open 105-pound class will be held in addition to the inter-city bouts.

William Casey, the sensational Boston amateur middleweight, will box Jack Gadd, winner of the Pan-American Exposition tournament. They met at the Crescent A. C. in Brooklyn, December 22, and their bout was an unusually spirited one.

Among the Boston boys already selected are: Tony Vallas in the 115-pound class; Charles De Angelis and John Donovan in the 125-pound class; Charles O'Connell in the 135-pound class; Joe Connolly and Jack Corbett in the 145-pound class, and Pat Kelley and Joe McDonald in the heavyweight class.

A downtown ticket office will be opened tomorrow at No. 50 school street, room 8, where members of clubs affiliated with the A. A. U. will be able to secure tickets of admission.

LUBIN URGES FARMERS TO USE PARCEL POST FOR PRODUCTS

Tells Farmers How to Become Merchants

BY using the parcel post as the means of transportation of farm products to the consumer direct, every producer would become a merchant in his own name, his products would go direct to the consumer, the middleman, the broker and the speculator would be done away with.—From speech delivered by David Lubin, noted expert on agricultural markets, in St. Louis.

By a Special Correspondent of the American.

St. Louis, Jan. 10.—David Lubin, founder and evangel of the International Institute of Agriculture at Rome, of which the United States and all other advanced nations are members, concluded today an eventful and triumphant week with the organized farmers of Missouri. He is an international expert on rural credit and agricultural markets.

Speaking every day, in the morning, in the afternoon and at night, Mr. Lubin has held the eager and undivided interest and attention of as keen and intelligent body of farmers as can be found anywhere in the Republic.

"I have never known anything to surpass the sustained interest the Missourians have evidenced in the teaching and appeals of this really great agricultural economist. Accompanying Mr. Lubin and speaking with him from every platform was John Temple Graves, editorial representative of the Hearst newspapers, specifically commissioned by Mr. Hearst to go with Mr. Lubin and to co-operate with him fully in the great cause he carries to the farming people of the country.

The first meeting was on Tuesday night in the great auditorium of the University of Missouri, packed to the gallery. Mr. Lubin spoke two hours to an audience that heard him with rapt attention.

At the conclusion of his speech the platform and the place in front of it was thronged with eager people of both sexes pressing forward to ask questions and to solicit more information. It was indeed an inspiring scene, full of promise of the future of the agricultural masses.

Forming a circle of which he was the centre, Mr. Lubin sat for another hour, teaching by illustration and parable an object lesson. He chose from the audience one man to sit on one side of the platform as the representative of the producer, another in the centre the Postoffice and an eminent woman in the audience on the left hand to represent the consumer. With these three figures he convincingly explained his great plan of adapting the parcel post to the work of distributing agricultural products directly from the producer to the consumer.

APPROVAL OF PLAN.

The audience, which was the State convention of organized farmers, meeting at the call of the State Regent of Agriculture and sitting as the hosts of the Agricultural Department of Missouri's great university, before adjourning adopted a ringing resolution commending William Randolph Hearst for the powerful and consistent interest he has always manifested in the welfare of the agricultural masses, and more especially for the latest expression of his interest in sending one of his personal lieutenants to co-operate with the purposes of the Lubin meeting, and ending with another resolution of hearty thanks to Colonel John Temple Graves for what they termed his eloquent and inspiring speech in comment upon Mr. Lubin's representation and his argument in support of it.

At the conclusion of the resolution, Colonel Graves read Mr. Hearst's telegram expressing his intention to give the sustained and sincere support of all his great newspapers to the evangel of Mr. Lubin, in behalf of markets, rural credits and utilization of parcel post. The reading of this telegram was received with tremendous and enthusiastic applause from the entire audience.

Wednesday morning a committee of twenty-five, appointed by the convention of the night before and increased to sixty by the intense interest created by the Lubin speech, met in conference with Mr. Lubin and at 12:30 o'clock, after two and one-half hours of unbroken argument, the committee of sixty representing all that was best and most intelligent and most representative of the farmers of Missouri by a unanimous and rising vote indorsed in full Mr. Lubin's plan, as related to markets and to the utilization of the parcel post for distribution, reserving their approval of his discussion of rural credits until he had time to present his views upon that question to the two meetings which were to follow.

GERMAN MODEL SYSTEM.

The proposition and the argument which Mr. Lubin thundered unceasingly during his visit to the intellectual capital were three in number: First he argued that that the supreme consideration of the producer was to find markets for the products of his farm, the lack of markets, therefore being a great obstruction to the prosperity of the producer.

In seeking a remedy for this, Mr. Lubin presented the results of the patient investigation and experiment of all foreign nations except Turkey in a plan which had been evolved from the German Landwirtschaftsrat.

This was an organization beginning first with the townships, then by representatives to a county organization and from the county organizations to the States and from the States to the Nation. This organization carefully formed and wonderfully vindicated by universal results, amounted in fact to a great national and international bureau of information.

Every member who paid his fifty cents admission fee in the township, or the counties or the States, was entitled to ask and have his questions answered through the wide-sweeping investigation and study of the county, State and national organization, as to the locality in which any particular product could find its best and most eligible market.

Advancing a step further, Mr. Lubin declared that having found market for his products, the supreme consideration with the producer was to get that market in the best and cheapest way. To this end he presented a well-thought-out and practical plan for the utilization of the parcel post, which in the speaker's opinion had not yet reached even the middle mark of its great usefulness for the future.

Mr. Lubin's plan was that the scope and efficiency of the parcel post might be finally multiplied under the genius and direction of the government. His idea was to use the parcel post as the medium of transportation directly between the farmer producer and the consumer. Every producer was to be able to purchase from the enlarged parcel post office a series of slips which would stand opposite a number corresponding to his name, which slips would indicate what the producer had to sell.

PAYMENTS MADE BY COUPONS.

The consumer seeking certain products examined the reports or the information on file in the postoffice as to where these products could be obtained. The consumer could then purchase from the parcel post office books similar in form to the mileage coupon books of the railroad.

Sending the order through the mails, or the rural carriers, would put the producer in possession of the information as to what was wanted.

The producer, hanging out his red flag or red poster in front of his house, would indicate to the rural carrier that the article was in his house waiting for transportation to the consumer, who had ordered it. Upon receipt of goods ordered, the consumer paid from the coupons in his book the amount of the purchase, which was either transmitted from the central parcel postoffice directly to the producer, or sent to the local postoffice nearest to the producer, an subject to his demand. The coupons are to be redeemable in cash.

Under this system and its enlargements every farmer, every producer, would become a merchant in his own name, his product would go direct to the consumer, the middleman and the broker and the speculator would be done away with. This proposition also met the ringing endorsement of the farmers of Missouri.

Mr. Lubin reserved for his last evening and his last discourse the matter of rural credits. Upon this theme on Wednesday he addressed to an audience who heard him with breathless interest and attention.

SYSTEM OF RURAL CREDITS.

Mr. Lubin's idea of rural credits is a vigorous adaptation of the Landschaft system to American conditions. Mr. Lubin's International Institute of Agriculture was the originator of the rural credits propaganda in the United States. After a comparative study of rural credit systems all over the world, Mr. Lubin commits himself to the Landschaft system as the best, the soundest, the safest and the best vindicated system of rural credits in the world.

This Landschaft system has been in operation in Germany for 151 years without a break, failure or a misfortune. In spite of the colossal strain of the European war, the bonds of the German Landschaft are as safe and as good as they were in days of peace.

It is the only system known by which the farmer owns land on borrowed money at 3 or 3½ or 4 per cent., running from fifty to seventy-five years. The Landschaft system is intended for the borrower. The banks naturally oppose it because it restricts their monopoly of power over the farmer's finance. But the people who borrow and the people who lend in small sums are particularly the beneficiaries of it.

Under the laws of Germany Landschaft bonds are considered so safe that the German government directs that the trust funds of widows and orphans must be invested in them.

Mr. Lubin asserts with emphasis that the enormous vitality of the German government, its apparent indestructability in war and its resources which seem to defy all efforts to destroy them, are primarily based upon this incomparable Landschaft system.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKET

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks were irregular at the opening in New York and the earliest trend was downward. Many issues weakened within a few minutes and in a number of cases the decline was considerable. Bulls had hoped for outside buying on a large scale, but orders of this kind form such a source received over Sunday did not afford much support. Professional traders who were in a position to obtain profits took them quickly.

The supply of stocks was much larger than it was late last week. However, sentiment appeared to be good and many important interests are said to be inclined towards the long side. But in trading circles it is generally believed that prices are going to be indefinite as to trend for awhile. The market is becoming more as it was before the war, and the boom in valuation of industrials which reaped a harvest in war orders seems to be over. New York Central was strong at the start, opening at the highest price it has attained since 1915. Its earnings on its common stock are estimated as high as 12 per cent. U. S. Steel was very active. It began with a slight gain and then receded. It was said that any large increase in unfilled tonnage it may report today has been too long expected to prove a market factor.

DECLINES WERE GENERAL.

A New York dispatch attributes the decline to general pressure from an unknown source. At the end of fifteen minutes the tone was weak, with leading issues still in large supply.

Declines at 10:15 included American Can ⅞, American Smelting 1, Anaconda ¼, Utah Copper ¼, U. S. Steel ⅝, Car & Foundry 1, American Locomotive ½, Baldwin 1½, Crucible 1⅝, Distillers ⅜, California Petroleum 2, Mexican Petroleum 2¼, Lackawanna Steel 1⅞, Great Northern Ore ⅛, Maxwell ⅜, Studebaker ½, Westinghouse ⅛, New York Air Brake 1, International Mercantile Marine certificates 1½, Atchison ¼, Baltimore & Ohio ¼, Chesapeake & Ohio ¼, Lehigh Valley ½, N. Y. Central ¼, Pennsylvania ⅜, Reading ⅜, Southern Pacific ¼, Union Pacific ¼ and Rock Island ⅛.

Anglo-French bonds were up ¼ at 96. Among stocks to show gains were Alaska Gold ¼, Chino ⅜, Bethlehem 10, Republic Steel ¼, and Butte & Superior ¾.

U. S. SMELTING STRONG.

U. S. Smelting was the feature of the Boston market at its opening, selling at its highest record price and then advancing to 60⅞. It had never before crossed 60. It was an active as well as strong issue. There was a fair volume of business here in stocks at the start and the tone was firm. When the decline began in New York it was echoed by some shares on the local list. Aside from mines, United Shoe was an issue to advance. It held gains well. Boston remained firmer than New York.

Early declines included Calumet & Arizona ¼, Isle Royale ¼, North Butte ¼, Lake ¼ and Ventura ⅛.

Among gains were Alaska Gold ½, Butte & Superior ½, American Zinc ¼, Old Dominion ⅜, New Haven ½, U. S. Smelting 1 and United Shoe ⅞.

WAITING FOR STEEL DIVIDEND.

Many speculators have been wondering since Judge Gary, chairman of the United States Steel Corporation delivered his famous caution to the American people to go slow and expect more or less reaction in business when the war in Europe ends, if what he said in any way forecasted dividend action by directors when they meet near the end of this month.

Expectation is almost universal that the dividend on common stock will be resumed, and some people are so sanguine, in view of recent profits of the concern, they hope for an extra distribution. But the best informed do not look for any increase in the rate, nor any more good fortune to stockholders than a cash return at the old rate upon the common issue.

With net earnings for 1915 estimated at about $130,000,000, the steel corporation would be able to show since its organization a yearly average of surplus, after paying preferred dividends of 8.2 per cent. on common stock.

AN ARMY OF STOCKHOLDERS.

A dividend payment on steel common would mean much to this country, for it has an army of stockholders. It is an issue also largely held by Europeans.

At the end of March last it was reported that foreign holdings of this stock totalled 1,285,636 shares, of which about 750,000 were owned by British.

The Dutch had 357,293 shares. Owing to discontinuance of dividend payments, foreigners were disposed to sell Steel common stock and, aside from war necessities, this caused heavy liquidation. Total foreign holdings dropped from the amount given above to 826,833 shares between March and the end of September last.

Foreign selling has continued since. How much it totalled at the end of 1915 has not been disclosed. But shares sold returned to this country within the first six months of 1915 have at the present price a valuation of more than $40,000,000.

It was foreign selling which sent U. S. Steel as low as 38 on the New York Stock Exchange last year. It was home buying of this security which sent it afterwards to the highest price in several years.

BRITISH MOBILIZATION PLAN.

Now that the British government has announced what it will pay for American securities in furtherance of its plan to mobilize them for war financing, foreign disposal of our stocks and bonds will inspire more interest than ever.

It will also have influence upon the stock market for a long time. Liquidation by Europeans of American securities has chiefly been in railway shares and this, in the opinion of many, explains why the latter have not advanced in price proportionately with industrials.

A year ago forty-one great railroads in this country reported that about 12 per cent. of the aggregate of their stock was held abroad. Foreigners have been selling American rails quite steadily for a year. It is estimated they have realized from $750,000,000 to $1,000,000,000 in this way.

FINANCIAL NEWS IN BRIEF.

Chesapeake & Ohio is expected to show at the end of the next fiscal year a surplus after charges close to $5,000,000. Its current earnings are breaking all records. It is now realizing a fair return upon its investment in the Hocking Valley road, it owning $8,825,000 of the latter's $11,000,000 stock.

American Zinc profits for this month are expected to amount to between $700,000 and $800,000. Earnings for later months may be reduced on account of the shutdown of its Mascot No. 1 mine.

According to latest reports there are 12,163 cars on the New Haven line waiting to be unloaded and 3,906 cars loading.

The Bethlehem Steel Corporation spent $12,000,000 last year in new construction and plant enlargements this year will cost $20,000,000. The work will extend into 1917, for $40,000,000 has been appropriated for such improvements.

MONEY MARKET CAUSES MUCH DISCUSSION

By BOERSIANER.

Chicago, Jan. 10.—Hugely important conclusions are drawn from the striking strength of sterling exchange and the proportionate weakness of the German mark and the Austrian crown.

Ready reference financiers, who speak quickly and think slowly, announce this means nothing less than the beginning of the end of the war, with the central powers suing for peace.

A wholly empirical view of the foreign exchange situation condones the superficial conclusion. Sterling advanced to 4.71¼ last week from the low point of 4.50 in 1915. Marks, in the corresponding time, declined steadily from 88 to 73⅛, crowns from 19½ to 12¼.

* * *

It is axiomatic to the independent and intelligent that money tells the political and martial tale well in advance of general knowledge and official announcement. The gold leaf beaten to almost invisible fineness, which registers a forthcoming change in temperature, is less sensitive and not more infallible than money value quotations in critical times; always providing they are not other valid explanations.

* * *

The trouble with the peace-seers is that they see quotations only. To them the valid explanations (so obvious to the detached onlooker) are oblivious.

To the day when sterling exchange fell to 4.50 practically nothing had been done to stay the fall. British holders of American securities distracted and bewildered by home conditions clung tenaciously to "Americans" in the belief that these were the only safe values. To that time the purchases of supplies here by the British government were on credit. No British treasury bills had been sold here, no Anglo-American loan floated.

* * *

The turn came when many millions worth of treasury bills were taken here by American bankers and London liquidation began. Then came the flotation of the Anglo-French loan, followed by the British bankers' loan of not less than $50,000,000. Payments for the two last borrowing began recently and with these instalments exchange on London began to rise rapidly.

Epitomized, in one way and another directly and indirectly, Great Britain managed to get from American bankers and some investors from $600,000,000 to $800,000,000, a sum which in itself assured a recovery in sterling. But in addition to this Great Britain exports to the United States have increased in the last two months, while British selling of American stocks and bonds totals $1,500,000,000.

On the other side, as regards Germany and Austria, conditions, trade and money wise, have been working inexorably against those countries. Germany's overseas business now is virtually nil. Her exports to the United States are clandestine, of the blockade—running order, and therefore of little worth. A year ago she borrowed $10,000,000 of treasury bills here which were taken by small investors.

* * *

These matured last week and to take care of the maturity the flotation bankers, on an order from the German treasury, sold marks. There was no other way to meet the payments, since the German government could not remit directly in consequence of the general embargo.

The selling of marks for the purpose indicated accentuated the natural downward propensity; downward because the exigencies of the war have steadily decreased the demand for marks. Germany and Austria, conditions, trade no credits here. Her American securities were sold in the early days of the war through Holland, while upon the other hand, Great Britain's liquidation of "Yankees" comes much later and was enormous.

What has been said of Germany may be said with double emphasis of Austria. At best, the business of the dual monarchy with America is about one-sixth of Germany's trade with this country.

* * *

A final thought: If the rise in sterling and the fall in marks implied an early cessation of hostilities with the Central Powers worsted, there would be reflection of the coming event in exchanges on Great Britain's allies. The French franc, the Italian lire, the Russian ruble, display no strength.

FEAR COAL FAMINE IN NEWFOUNDLAND

St. John's, N. F., Jan. 10.—This colony and the city of St. John's in particular, faces a coal famine. With weather of the usual frigid temperature, stores have been depleted until little more than a fortnight's supply of fuel remains. No further shipments are in immediate prospect. Sales already have been reduced to half-ton lots, which are sold at high prices.

BENEFIT FOR BOX 52 FUND TOMORROW

The Russell Fire Club has donated $500 to the fund being raised by the Box 52 Association for the families of Hosemen Willett and Walsh of Engine 10, who perished recently at a fire in the West End. Among the contributors were several fire fighters who risked their lives in digging out the bodies of their comrades.

Charles E. Loud of No. 72 Beacon street, in sending a check for $25, stated that it was in appreciation of the service rendered him and his family by members of Engine Company 10.

A capacity house will witness the benefit performance of "The Only Girl" at the Majestic Theatre tomorrow afternoon. Many firemen of the city will attend the performance, besides members of the Massachusetts Fire Chiefs' Club.

The fund committee announces that subscriptions and pledges now total $4,684.96. The following additional contributions are acknowledged:

181 PIANO WAREROOMS TREMONT ST., BOSTON

"The Joy of Having Music in the Home."

This picture tells the story:

The Autopiano

If you have an idle piano—with no one to play it—exchange it for a player-piano, then you can play and enjoy the full pleasure of music. It means that the world's music in opera, hymns, dance music and popular airs can be yours if you say the word. The instrument can be played by hand in the ordinary way or by inserting a roll of music which we furnish FREE of charge; therefore, no training in music is necessary.

OUR CO-OPERATIVE PLAYER PIANO CLUB SAVES YOU MORE THAN $100

By joining our club you pay only the "co-operative plan" price—we'll make a liberal allowance for your piano—and the balance in cash or monthly payments. You receive the Player-Piano at once with a stool or bench and music; freight paid to destination.

Send for illustrated catalogue and membership details of this wonderful plan at once, or call at our warerooms, 181 Tremont st., Boston.

The Savages Wanted the Newspaper for "Eye Medicine"

The Good Newspaper OUGHT to Be Eye Medicine. The INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE Is Good Medicine for a Good Newspaper

PROFESSOR JAMES, teacher of psychology at Harvard, in his talks to teachers and students, had an excellent chapter on blindness — the inability of one kind of a being to understand what the other kind does.

Man cannot understand the pleasure that a dog finds in a bone hidden under a hedge. The dog is puzzled, seeing his master sit hour after hour looking at a book, when he might be out chasing cats.

Professor James told also of African savages in amazement watching a white explorer fixedly looking at a newspaper, the first he had seen for months.

He read every column, every word, and the savages looked on. When he finished they offered to pay him whatever he liked in ivory for that wonderful paper. Knowing they couldn't read, he asked them WHY they wanted the paper. They said they wanted it for "eye medicine."

"We know that you would not keep your eyes fixed on that thing so long unless it were very wonderful eye medicine. Our eyes trouble us sometimes, and we want to buy the eye medicine at any price you like."

A newspaper OUGHT to be the best possible "eye medicine."

It ought to send into the brain, through the eyes, all the medicine that the human intellect needs—the truth in news, honest opinions, sincere comment, fair criticism and generous praise.

This is written to call your attention to the INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE, the great news service of the United States, which does all that it can to make of the newspapers that print its service first-class "eye medicine" for the country.

The editors of the country will be interested to know that during 1915 the added number of newspapers that began using the reports of the International News Service was ONE HUNDRED AND SIXTEEN.

A news service spending hundreds of thousands, as does the International News Service on war news ALONE, spending it for its subscribers, EXCLUSIVELY, the service of the greatest English, French and German newspapers, naturally increases in one year the number of subscribers by one hundred and sixteen.

The facts ought to interest editors of newspapers that are NOT subscribers.

The day will come when an International News Service franchise will add not only, as it does now, to the circulation, but also add immensely to the cash value of every newspaper possessing such a franchise.

Here for the information of editors are arranged alphabetically those one hundred and sixteen newspapers added to the International News Service's list of subscribers in the year 1915:

The destruction of the Capitol might awaken Congress to the necessity of preparedness, but it would prove rather a belated warning.

Our Battle with Pneumonia

By Woods Hutchinson, M. D.

The World's Best Known Writer on Medical Subjects.

PART ONE.

ALTHOUGH, in the main, the march of modern medicine has been a series of triumphs, at certain points its progress has been checked, if not actually defeated.

While we have been steadily beating back typhoid, tuberculosis, and diphtheria, most of the diseases which have baffled us have been either maladies of later life, like cancer and arterial sclerosis, or conditions depending upon long continued action of a variety of imperfectly known causes, like heart disease, Bright's disease and insanity.

But there is also one disease among the pure infections, whose germ has been identified, whose active cause known for nearly thirty years past, which still defies us, and that is pneumonia.

In fact, for some ten or fifteen years past, we have been faced with the singular and disquieting paradox, that of the two greatest and most fatal diseases of the lungs, while tuberculosis has been steadily declining, pneumonia has been rapidly increasing in deadliness.

Twenty years ago tuberculosis caused about one-seventh of all the deaths in the United States; pneumonia, about one-fifteenth. Today, tuberculosis has fallen to about one-twelfth of the deaths, while pneumonia has risen to one-tenth.

Yet, curiously enough, the community seems entirely unaware of the shifting relations in deadliness between these two serious diseases. While it is desperately afraid of tuberculosis, it still regards pneumonia as one of the rather more easily recoverable of the serious diseases.

One Reason Why.

One reason for this is probably that pneumonia of all types is a more common disease than tuberculosis and requires, so to speak, only about half the mortality to cause the same number of deaths; so that we have all known scores of people who have recovered from pneumonia, or "lung fever."

Another is that, unlike most infections, one attack of pneumonia confers no immunity or protection against another; in fact, rather the contrary; and a man may survive the first, second, and even third attack of lung fever to die in his fourth.

One reason why pneumonia so baffled medical skill was, that although the germ, or rather, germs —for there are at least four varieties of them, each producing a different type of the disease—were well known, the infection seldom naturally spreads to other human beings, and it was for a long time rather difficult to transmit it experimentally to animals.

Further than that, the pneumococcus which produced the most serious types of the disease was, if not identical with, quite hard to distinguish from two or three types of streptococci which were found in abundance in the human mouth, about the roots of the teeth and in the tonsils, even in conditions of perfect health.

So that we were driven to the discouraged conclusion, that some "state of the system," or lowered resisting power or other unknown factor was necessary in order to allow the pneumonia cocci to get a foothold in the lungs and produce the disease; and there the case hung for a number of years.

The Open Air Cure.

Considerable improvement in all but the most virulent type of cases was produced by the introduction of the open air treatment, with abundant feeding, similar to that relied upon in tuberculosis. But we could not honestly say that we knew of any drug or remedy which appeared to have a directly curative effect upon the disease.

In-Shoots

Somehow it always seems as though the other fellow got that silver lining to the cloud.

The man elected to office by a very large majority is apt to lose respect for his constituents.

It requires a lot of nerve for a man to wear gloves on the street during business hours in a small town.

Honesty is the best policy, to keep a fellow from becoming too fat.

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

Farewell Romance

"For the first time in its history Oregon has gone completely dry."—News dispatch.

THE wild and woolly bandit now, before he hits the trail
To bag the pelf, must nerve himself with slugs of ginger ale.
The Indian chief, who comes to town to sell the muskrat crop
And hear the news, for lack of booze gets lit on soda pop.
The howling cowboy has to use when he would get a jag on,
The artless aid of lemonade—the West is on the wagon!

NO more they shanghai sailor men, who come to life next morn
Upon the way to Baffin Bay or somewhere 'round the Horn.
Though soft drinks could be crowded down a mariner, no doubt,
It takes a pail of Chiasop ale to put a sailor out.
The picturesque and wicked crimp has vanished quite away.
Poor old Jim Turk could do no work were he alive today!

THE red-blood authors who could once uprear their readers' hair
Have lost the art that could impart a really first-class scare.
For all the fascinating crooks who led these gory frolics
And shot and slashed and stabbed and gashed were high-grade alcoholics.
The rifle's crack, the bowie's swish, the roughhouse and the row
Are all at rest—the boundless West is on the wagon now.

Unfinished Business

It is hardly to be supposed that Congress can do anything with a preparedness program while so many of the Democratic platform pledges remain unbroken.

But What About the Hat?

Archie Roosevelt having aspired to boxing honors, the colonel will soon have a son in the ring.

We Told You So

Ohio is passing more taxes, from which it may be inferred that the campaign to make John D. pay up resulted disastrously for Ohio.

History Repeating Itself

Barnes and Penrose again are sore. For Roosevelt rides on his raids once more.

He's a Master of 'Em

We do not know why King George has conferred the Order of Merit upon Henry James, but we suppose it is for some new kind of entanglement.

Speak for Yourself, Bill

Mr. Taft says that it is better to lose with a regular than to win with a Bull Moose. But some of the boys who lost with a regular four years ago didn't land good jobs as college professors immediately after the battle.

Economical Management

Perhaps one reason the New Haven has increased its income is that it has not wasted any money in running trains on time through the recent snowstorms.

Old Wives for New

By Dorothy Dix

IS a woman of fifty-five too old to interest her fifty-five-year-old husband?

A dentist of New York City says that she is. He has forsaken his wife for a little peaches-and-cream girl, and he excuses himself by asserting that his wife is too old for him, yet they are both the same age.

Of course in cases of errant fancy one excuse is about as good as another, and any old reason goes for a man wandering from his own fireside, but, in reality, the question of whether a middle-aged woman is older than a middle-aged man is one purely of temperament. The record in the family Bible has nothing to do with the case, for there are both men and women who are senile in the cradle, and children at seventy.

It cannot be denied that the general impression prevails that a woman is older and less attractive at a given age than a man is. Perhaps this was true in the past, when women bore many children, had few domestic conveniences, worked like galley slaves in their homes, and when they had little education and no outside interest to keep their minds stimulated. Under such conditions women faded early and became atrophied both in soul and body.

But such is not the case in these days, when life has been made soft and easy for most women, when the care of their persons has become a religion with them, and when the average woman reads more, travels more and studies more than her husband does because she has more time and opportunity.

As men get along toward middle life they are apt to slump. They grow careless about their personal appearance. They hate to dress up. They narrow down to a few interests and have little concern about any subjects other than their business, the stock market and politics. Worse still, in only too many cases, they become egoists who will talk of nothing but themselves.

As a woman approaches middle life she is in such deadly fear of being shelved that she puts forth every effort to make herself agreeable and attractive. She dresses as well as she possibly can, she joins study clubs, she keeps up with every movement and can talk on any subject. More than that, she cultivates tact and adaptability, and studiously seeks to make herself agreeable, for well she knows that the feminine Tommie Tucker must sing for her supper.

The truth is ago has gone out of fashion with women. Nobody knows how old Ana is, but the one certain thing is that she is as young as her husband.
